

No Comment on Bermuda Offer In Washington

Barkley Says Nation Needs 'Whole String' Of Air Fleet Bases

Washington, Aug. 26.—Bermuda's announcement that she was ready to place an air base at the disposal of the United States encountered expectations today that some official pronouncement would be forthcoming this week on the status of negotiations for additional defense outposts in other British possessions.

Thus far neither the White House nor the navy department has made any comment on Saturday's disclosure at Hamilton, Bermuda, that the great island of the West Indies would be made available to the United States on a 99-year lease for an air and possibly a navy base.

Besides Bermuda, Newfoundland, Trinidad, Barbados and the Bahamas have been mentioned as possible base sites. President Roosevelt, who has been conducting the negotiations, has not limited, however, what locations are being discussed.

Senator Barkley (D-Ky.), commenting on the Bermuda announcement, said yesterday that the United States should acquire "a whole string" of air and fleet bases guarding approaches to the Panama canal. Asked how Britain should be paid for bases leased, Barkley replied that no official plan had yet been advanced. He noted, however, that unofficial suggestions included a reduction or cancellation of the British war debt, and the transfer of 50 "overage" American destroyers to the royal navy.

The question of the destroyer transfer was aired last night in a radio debate between Senators Nye (R-Ind.) and Danaher (R-Conn.), and Senator Pepper (D-Fla.) and Col. Henry Breckinridge, New York attorney.

Nye and Danaher argued that it would be an act of war to make the fighting craft available to Britain. Pepper and Breckinridge urged such a transfer, contending it might turn the tide of battle against "our declared enemies" and thus avert war from this country.

Loomis Says Heil Did Not 'Stay on the Job'

Adams.—(P)—Orlando S. Loomis, Mauston, candidate for the Progressive nomination for governor, said in a talk at Patrick's lake yesterday that Governor Heil "reflected on the intelligence" of Wisconsin voters when, in a campaign speech, he asked for "another term to finish his job."

"Governor, if you stayed on the job as you promised the people you would when you asked them for their vote two years ago you wouldn't find yourself asking for an additional term to complete your job," Loomis said.

New England Town Raises Food to Send to Europe

BY GLADWIN HILL
Great Barrington, Mass.—(P)—This typical New England town, stirred by reports of food shortages abroad, has pitched in to help—not with money or with promises, but with food from its own soil.

A sign on the main highway by a one-acre field under cultivation proclaims:

"Great Barrington division—Berkshire famine relief field No. 2."

And around the town are other fields, all planted to carrots, beets and beans for hungry mouths of Europe.

It all started less than four weeks ago.

Great Barrington, Berkshire music center and New York socialite summer resort, has about 6,000 year-round inhabitants, elm-bordered streets, colonial houses and a town hall.

To the town hall came 40 to 50 people for an extemporaneous meeting on the European relief question.

At first there was desultory talk of fund-raising. Then, Delaney Burke, retired New York merchant-discounting counsel who was acting as chairman, said:

"Let's forget about money. Let's do this in the New England way. Like the Minute-Men did. Food is needed—why give food? Why not raise it ourselves?"

The glimmer of an idea flashed through the audience. M. Curtin Whalen, a local auto and tractor distributor, jumped up and yelled:

"I'll plow up Main street if you want!"

A woman called out, "I'll contribute an acre of land!"

"That's the land I'm going to plow," Whalen called back. "And not by tomorrow night—I'll have it done by noon."

Someone else yelled, "I'll have an acre plowed and planted in 24 hours—all the town will have to do is pick the stuff!"

A woman called out that she'd contribute canning equipment, and somebody else offered the space for it.

"How many people can I count on to help with the planting?" Burke demanded.

The entire audience jumped up "canning" the same response again.

And the next day dowagers, debutantes and townspeople pitched in, planting, cultivating, canning and helping with the campaign—among them Albert Spaulding, the

All Dictators Must Be Crushed—Clausen

Waukesha.—(P)—Fred H. Clausen, candidate for the Republican United States senatorial nomination, told a luncheon meeting here today that "none of us may breathe in ease until every power-seeking dictator the world over has been crushed."

Clausen declared he is "against all dictators, . . . especially Hitler, Stalin and Mussolini, and the military dictators of Japan."

"Before war can be driven from the world," Clausen continued, "dictators must be destroyed, and democracies such as we have built in the United States, where the people themselves actually rule, must be kept alive."

Permits Issued for 2 Homes, Garages

Two permits for residences and garages were issued Saturday by John A. Pierre, building inspector.

Rasmussen and Dorschner, Appleton contractors, will build a 5-room house at 1905 S. Adams street, at a cost of about $4,500. The house will be 32 by 26 feet, and the garage 12 by 20 feet.

A. Cooke, 110 E. Nicholas street, received a permit to build a house at 513 E. Alice street, at an approximate cost of $3,600. The home will be 32 by 26 feet and the garage 12 by 20 feet. It will have four rooms.

Alfonsi Lashes at Economy Program

Beloit.—(P)—Paul Alfonsi of Pence, candidate for the Progressive nomination for governor, discussed the Heil administration's economy program in a talk yesterday at a picnic sponsored by the Rock County Progressive club.

"The claim made by the Heil administration that the dismissal of some 250 state employees effects tax reductions on farms, homes and small places of business is false," he said. "Having failed to keep his pledges to the farmer, Governor Heil now attempts to appease Wisconsin agriculture with his smoke-screen."

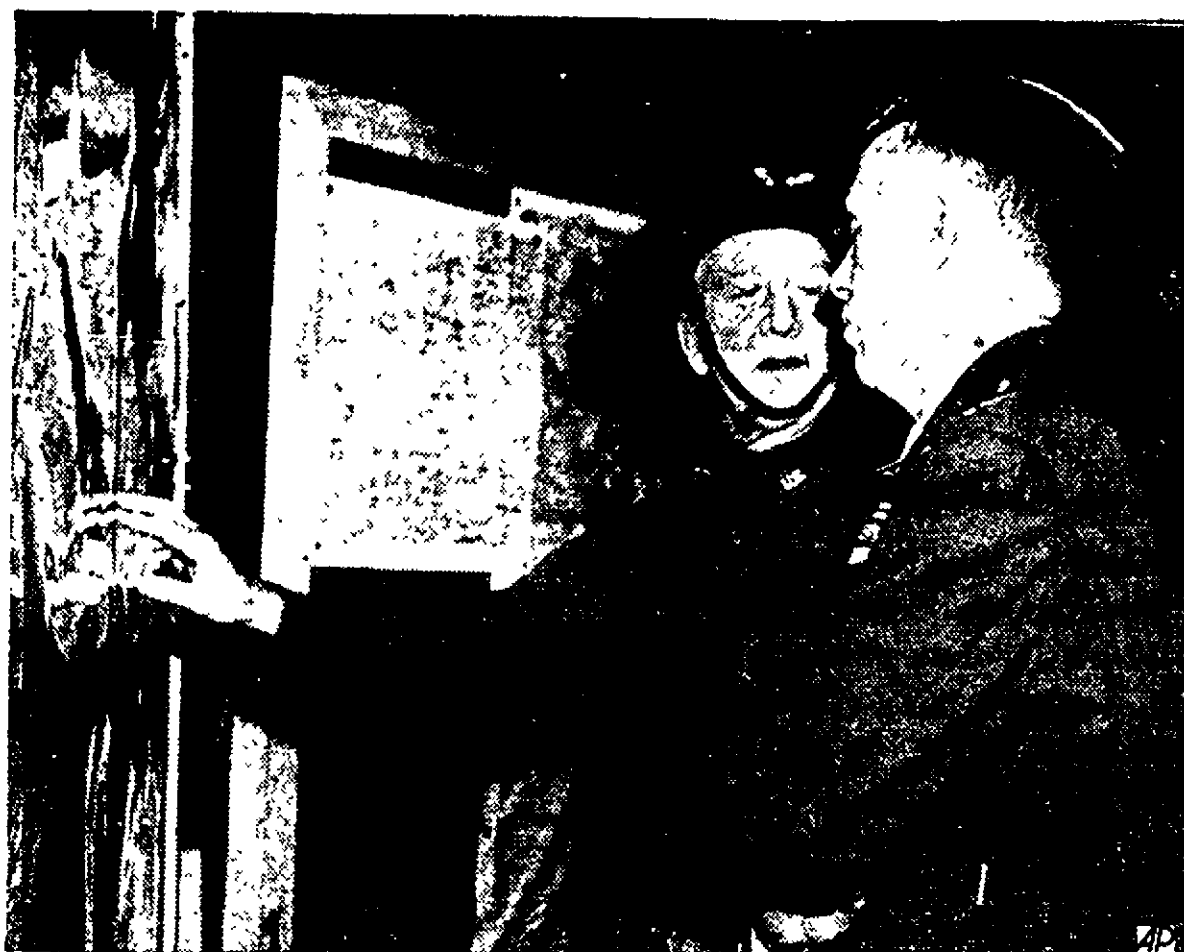

"The entire cost of the operation of all state departments is borne by taxes other than real estate taxes," Alfonsi asserted. "The dismissal of state employees affords tax relief only to those who pay income, dividend, gift and utility taxes."

Peterson Opposed To Forced Service

Weyauwega.—(P)—Reuben W. Peterson of Berlin, candidate for the Republican nomination for United States senator, said yesterday he was opposed to compulsory conscription and suggested that more youths would enlist in the nation's armed forces if the pay was increased. He spoke at a football game.

Mayor at Weyauwega

Mayor and Mrs. John Goodland, Jr., represented Appleton yesterday at the football game between the Milwaukee Chiefs and Little Chute's Flying Dutchmen at Weyauwega. Mayors of Wisconsin cities had been invited to the game.

Sees Talks With Canada as Attempt To Jump on John Bull as He's Down

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

Mackenzie

New York.—(P)—The Berlin-Rome brotherhood is taking a very sour and uncompromising view of Uncle Sam's discussions with Canada regarding defense matters of mutual interest, and his conversations with England concerning the leasing of naval bases in the western hemisphere.

It would seem from the fascist and Nazi press (which, as you know, is government-controlled) that Sam is up to some sort of skullduggery whereby he hopes to gain at the expense of his friends and neighbors. He has, they say, imperialistic ambitions.

The intimation is that Uncle Sam is preparing to take advantage of John Bull's tough position and appropriate British territory. That is to say Sam is planning to jump on John with both feet while the latter is down.

The Italian press is the more voluble on the subject of our taking advantage of England—perhaps having in mind to get some of its own back for President Roosevelt's historic rebuke to Italy when she entered the war just before France collapsed. F.D.R. declared that "on this tenth day of June, 1940, the hand that held the dagger has struck it into the back of its neighbor."

'Empty Letter'

Hartington, Neb.—(P)—Postmaster C. J. Dendering testifies Hartington children might not use the right word but they're good at description.

A little girl came into the post-office asking for "an empty letter." That was all perplexed employees could get her to say. Finally they discovered she wanted an envelope.

Boat Builders Of Lakes May Do Navy Work

Torpedo, Patrol Craft And Sub-Chasers Offer Chance to Small Firm

Washington.—(P)—Senator Wiley (R-Wis.) made public today a letter from Secretary Knox outlining navy plans to contract for a fleet of motor torpedo boats, patrol craft and sub-chasers.

Knox said the navy has under contract over 30 motor torpedo boats of various designs of which some already have been delivered.

As soon as practicable these craft will be assembled for thorough competitive tests to determine which designs are best suited for the needs of national defense.

"The decision will be made promptly and immediately thereafter," the secretary asserted. "The navy will enter the market for a large number of the chosen designs, with quick deliveries an important factor."

Many plants in the small boat industry were said to be qualified to build these boats, including builders along the coasts, the Great Lakes, the navigable inland waterways, and even inland where transportation to a navigable stream is overland.

Knox informed Wiley that in choosing the companies with whom to negotiate, the matter of geographical location would be a vital concern and that the Great Lakes region, including ports at Superior, Wis., and Duluth, Minn., would be given "every consideration."

Bids to be Advertised
"The boats now authorized and appropriated for will be publicly advertised and the awards made to the lowest responsible bidders," he declared. "I hope the many qualified builders on the Great Lakes will enter the competition."

Knox said the motor torpedo boats probably would have wooden hulls, with a possibility some will have aluminum hulls.

"There also will be a large amount of steel work, in the form of 170 foot patrol craft, which will be offered to the industry in the near future," he said.

"To these will be added a considerable number of 110 foot sub-chasers, in either wood or steel, or both. It is planned to distribute these in the same manner as the motor torpedo boats, and for the same reasons."

Berlin Feels Sting of Bombs; London Again Is Under Fire

By the Associated Press
Terrific air battles raged over Britain today as massed squadrons of German planes, flashing across the channel on a 30-mile front, attacked England's "Hell's corner" port of Dover—gateway for a possible Nazi invasion—and bombed crowded streets in Folkestone and other coastal towns.

British spitfires and Hurricane fighting planes roared up to meet the new intensified onslaught, and at least six of the German raiders were reported shot down early in the day.

Waves of British bombing planes, in a display of rising aerial might, thundered over Berlin in a three-hour raid before dawn today, while Nazi warplanes dumped high explosive, incendiary and "shriek" bombs on the London area for the fifth time in 48 hours.

Berlin reported 1,500 bombs totalling 300,000 pounds were dropped on 38 objectives in the British isles during the night. "Small fires and property damage" resulted in the London raid, the British said.

Despite a growing clamor by Britons for retaliatory raids on Berlin, a R.A.F. spokesman declared that today's attack on the German capital by no means signalled the start of "terror" assaults on German civilians.

Scenes of horror were reported in a southeast coast town in England this morning as Nazi warplanes spread death and destruction in a 20-minute raid during the shopping rush hour, spewing bombs into crowded streets.

Aviation experts in London estimated that 3,000 German planes—about one-sixth of Hitler's total operating strength in the air—have been thrown into the nine-week-old assault on the island kingdom.

Heavy explosions reverberated in downtown Berlin as at least four waves of British bombers streaked over the cloud-blanketed German capital.

The Germans acknowledged that at least one incendiary bomb landed in a village near the Berlin industrial area.

In the Saturday night raid, a big bomb burst within 300 yards of U. S. Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy's residence on the city's outskirts and incendiary bombs showered all around, but the ambassador reported there were no casualties.

While the western war of words and bombs raged, the Balkans continued troubled. Hungary called to more troops, even though a resumption of her conference with Rumania over Transylvania was considered possible.

Greece, alarmed at Italy's angry words, was reported quietly calling up reserves to man the borders.

Who's Who in County Politics

(Editor's note.—The following is one of a series of articles on the men and women who are directing political activity in Outagamie county. Some of them hold no public office, nor do they seek office, while others are office holders and are candidates this year. These articles are confined to the men and women who have been political leaders first, and candidates and office holders secondly. Their personal reasons for being in politics are given in the articles.)

State Senator Mike Mack. Shiocton, who has been in politics since he was 21 years old, is resigned to the fact that he is a "dyed-in-the-wool" politician and expects to main to the rest of his life.

He entered politics to back a candidate he wanted elected to office, got interested in the problems politics offered and soon after sought office himself.

"While politics cannot always be called clean," Senator Mack says, "generally speaking the candidate or office holder is a public spirited citizen."

Senator Mack, who always has advocated "the American way of life," says his parents were Democrats. He joined the Republican ranks because of poor conditions under a Democratic regime about the time he became interested in politics, he says.

Not long after he entered politics at Shiocton, Senator Mack was named a caucus delegate to a county convention. He then ran for the county board, was defeated and then won in a second attempt several years later. He has been on the county board since a period of 27 years. The last 14 years he has been chairman of the board.

Although he had often been urged to run for the assembly or senate, Senator Mack said he could not afford to because of the small salary. However, he did run for the state senate eight years ago and has been holding that office since.

"Even though I should love my present political office," Senator Mack says, "I'm afraid I would still be an active party man. Politics is like an itch, it keeps at you. Constant meeting of people and the facing of new problems makes it impossible for the politician's interest in his work to wane."

Blanks for Pension Jobs are Available

All persons employed in county agencies concerned with the administration of pensions must qualify for their jobs through open competitive examinations, according to A. J. Opsiedal, acting director of personnel at Madison.

The order is in accordance with a bill passed by the 1939 legislature. The application blanks are available at the office of John E. Hantel, county clerk. All applications must be sent directly to the bureau of personnel at Madison.

Wisconsin Medical Society Explains Types of Arthritis

Madison—"There are two principal kinds of arthritis—osteo-arthritis and rheumatoid arthritis," explains the state medical society in a health bulletin today.

"The two great groups together comprise over 70 per cent of all forms of joint disease. They are separate and distinct diseases. Except for pains in the joints, which are common to both, the general symptoms are different; the course which each takes is different, and the treatment is radically different."

"In a well-nourished person between forty-five and sixty, especially a woman who has just passed through the menopause, complaint of pain in the spine, hips and knees, the weight-bearing joints, and swelling of the end joints of the fingers indicate osteo-arthritis."

"If you have osteo-arthritis, your general health is excellent, and your symptoms are really due to a premature aging of the joints which has nothing to do with general old age. Patients with osteo-arthritis live to be quite as old as those who do not have this disease. The arthritis itself will not become extensive; the pain in general will tend to decrease and you will not suffer any serious disability."

"Treatment consists of four things:

1. If you are even a little overweight, you must reduce to ease the strain on your weight-bearing joints.

2. Use any kind of physical therapy ordered by your doctor that gives you relief from pain. Heat, massage and hydrotherapy are usually the most effective.

3. Be faithful in the use of the medication which your doctor orders.

4. Rest the affected joints as much as possible and don't worry."

Symptoms Listed
"The patient with rheumatoid arthritis is usually a woman. She may be anywhere between the ages of twenty and sixty, but instead of being well nourished she is thin and chronically ill. The onset of the disease may be sudden with acute pain and swelling of the joints or gradual with a slight attack followed by a free interval and then further attacks of a more severe nature. The middle joints of the fingers may be the first to be affected; but as the disease progresses, many other joints become involved. There is a slight fever which is followed by loss of strength, loss of weight and a state of chronic illness."

"Early diagnosis of rheumatoid arthritis is important, for if the correct treatment is started at the onset of the disease, the chances of recovery are ever so much better. Rest is the most important feature of this early treatment. The soundest procedure is to rest the joints in light splints of plaster or aluminum. However, once or twice a day each joint should be put through as complete a range of movement as possible. This should be done gently, preferably following a warm bath. The diet should be highly nutritious consisting of anything and everything they can enjoy and digest. Plain cod-liver oil, if well tolerated, is especially recommended, and a gain in weight is usually a favorable sign. Iron should be taken for the anemia."

"After the more active stages of the disease have subsided, many forms of physical therapy, such as baking, massage, baths and diathermy, are of particular value. Finally, and perhaps most important of all, try to relieve your mind of all possible worries and anxieties."

Hopes State Can Build for Navy

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau
Washington—Possibilities of Wisconsin shipbuilding companies receiving contracts, under the national defense program, are viewed as "most hopeful" by Senator Alexander Wiley, Chippewa Falls Republican, who, as a recently-elected member of the important naval affairs committee, has been brought into closer contact with officials of the navy department.

Wiley has arranged to see, in the near future, both Secretary of the Navy Knox and William S. Knudsen of the national defense advisory commission in regard to Wisconsin's possible participation in the navy-building program.

Meantime, Senator David I. Walsh, Massachusetts Democrat, who heads the naval affairs committee, says he sees "no objection to the navy giving contracts for smaller vessels, such as 'mosquito' boats, along the Great Lakes."

In pressing for participation for Wisconsin and the lake states, Wiley points out that "as the smaller-type vessels range only from 80 to 100 feet, they could be shipped on railroads and trucks and could be sent down the St. Lawrence River."

Wisconsin cities for which he hopes to provide shipbuilding programs include Green Bay, Milwaukee, Ashland and Marinette, as well as Superior and Manitowish.

Water Color Exhibit Will Open Art Shows

"New England of Today and Yesterday" is the title of a collection of 40 water colors by Frederic Whitaker which will open the series of 19 Lawrence college art exhibits Sept. 12. The exhibit will be held in the old Alexander gymnasium on the college campus and will last until Sept. 30. A selection of water colors from the college rental collection now is on display in the entrance to the college library.

A new procedure will be started with this exhibit in that students will be given an opportunity to vote on the pictures in the collection, and one or more will be added to the college rental collection on the basis of the expression of the popular choice by the students, according to Wallace S. Baldinger, associate professor of art at the college.

Frederic Whitaker has achieved prominence not only in the field of watercolor painting but also for his contributions to the goldsmith's art. The exhibition of his work will include such subjects as "Willows in the Winter," "Waterfront" and "Morning in the Mountains."

Opening Sept. 23 in the college library building is an exhibition entitled "What is Modern Architecture?" It has been assembled to show graphically the problems of modern architecture and how they are solved, to explain briefly and clearly what the style of the modern day is. Sixteen enlarged photographs show houses, schools, office buildings, housing developments and a zoo with leading architects including Frank Lloyd Wright represented. The display will close Oct. 7.

"The Wooden House in America," an exhibition showing uses of wood in building construction, will open in the campus gymnasium Oct. 7 and close Oct. 21. It traces changes in style as well as the development in methods of construction from the massive construction of log houses and heavy frame construction of New England's colonial homes to modern experiments in construction, including the use of pre-fabricated panels. Following the historical and technical material, the exhibition will include 10 important modern houses which show particularly interesting uses of wood in design and construction.

Original Woodcuts
Thirty original woodcuts, engravings and etchings reviewing the art of print making by artists of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries will be shown in the college library building from Oct. 7 to Oct. 30.

"The City: Decay or Planned Growth" is the title of an exhibit to show problems of city planning and how they are met which will open in the gymnasium Oct. 22. It demonstrates the technique for examining existing cities and establishing a program for city planning action. Washington, D. C. is used as the subject for the 24 framed mounts. The exhibition will close Nov. 15.

Water colors by William Zorach, one of the foremost modern sculptors as well as water color artist, will be shown in a collection opening in the library building Oct. 20 and lasting until Nov. 18.

"The Canterbury Tales and Chaucer's England" is the title of a series of photographs and reproductions of old prints showing the architecture, costumes and customs of England at the time of Chaucer which will be shown in the college library building from Nov. 18 to Dec. 4.

Stained Glass
An exhibition of stained glass by Charles Jay Connick, one of the foremost designers of stained glass in the world, will be held in the library building from Jan. 9 to Feb. 10, 1941. Connick, who is attempting to revive this thirteenth century art, has designed many windows in leading cathedrals of the country.

Thirty-five pieces of sculpture by foremost American sculpture are included in the first exhibition of sculpture being circulated through the country. The Lawrence showing will be in the library building from Feb. 10 to 28.

French chateaux of the Renaissance are shown in a series of large photographs of French countryside, especially in the valley of the Loire river, which will be on display in the library building from March 1 to 15.

An exhibition of 50 drawings and 30 prints by leading contemporary American artists will open in the campus gymnasium March 15 and continue to April 7. One or more selections will be made from the exhibit for the college rental collection by popular vote of the students.

Abstract paintings by Bruce Goff will be shown in an exhibition in the library building March 15 to April 9.

An exhibition of original paintings selected from the permanent collection of the Chicago Art Institute by special arrangement will open in the campus gymnasium April 7 and continue to April 30.

Elizabethan Show
A series of photographs of old buildings, prints and paintings designed to show the setting for English life at the time of Queen Elizabeth is included in an exhibit on Elizabethan England to be on display in the library building April 9 to 30.

Treasurer Will Accept Installments on Taxes

Installments of $10 or more will be accepted on delinquent taxes which have been turned over to Miss Marie Ziegenhagen, county treasurer, for collection, she said today. Delinquent taxes carry interest of 8 per cent until they are paid. Those taxes still delinquent on Oct. 1 will be sold by the treasurer.

group of photographers led by Edward Weston will be shown in the campus gymnasium May 1 to 15. The group has developed a style of photography characterized by exact precision of focus and tonal scale. In 1932 they formed the "F64 group," selecting the name because it designates one of the smaller openings commonly used on photographic lenses and because it means clarity of image, depth of focus.

Facsimile drawings by French masters of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries will be shown in an exhibition opening in the library building May 1 and continuing to May 15.

An exhibition including the winning model of a contest to encourage building of beautiful and efficient theaters will be held in the campus gymnasium May 19 to June 2. Thirty prize winning drawings of plans and enlarged photographs will be included.

A series of facsimiles by one of America's greatest woman painters, George O'Keefe will be shown in the library building May 21 to June 10.

Wisconsin Is Drenched With Heavy Rainfall

Downpours Interfere With Army Maneuvers, State Fair Program

Appleton was subjected to almost continuous light rains over the weekend and light rain and cloudy skies prevailed today as the Milwaukee weather bureau predicted mostly cloudy weather with occasional rain in southern Wisconsin tonight and in southeastern Wisconsin tomorrow. Not much change in temperature is expected.

Wisconsin received a soaking over the weekend which washed out sports events and picnics, interfered with phases of the second army maneuvers around Camp McCoy and cut short the final day's program at the state fair in Milwaukee. Jansville held the dubious honor of being subjected to the heaviest rainfall over the weekend. Unofficial reports said 4.07 inches had fallen during the 40 hours before 6 o'clock this morning.

Milwaukee weather instruments recorded 1.97 inches of rainfall from Saturday morning to Monday morning. Appleton had .75 inches for the corresponding period.

Only one game was played in the Wisconsin state baseball league. Sheboygan and LaCrosse going through their scheduled game at LaCrosse, but contests at Wisconsin Rapids and Fond du Lac were rained out.

Rain and fog grounded army planes which had gathered at the Madison airport to engage in the second army maneuvers, and automobile races at the state fair were called off because of the rain which poured down Sunday afternoon.

The Green Bay Packers, practicing for their game with the college All-Stars in Chicago Thursday night, were chased indoors to a skull session.

killing four of them, about 6:30 Sunday evening on Highway 57, a mile south of Forest Junction.

The cattle, pure bred Holsteins, were owned by Edwin Seybold, Forest Junction, and the loss was estimated at $800. Geisler who was unhurt told police that a mist and early darkness prevented him from seeing the cattle in time to avoid an accident.

Carl E. Reitz, 1324 N. Richmond street, was charged with reckless driving and ordered to appear in Green Bay police court Tuesday night as the result of an accident about 2:20 Sunday morning on Highway 141, at Green Bay's east city limits.

Treated at Hospital
Hilda Fulshur, Green Bay, and Mr. and Mrs. P. Ozarowicz, Green Bay, were treated for cuts and bruises at a Green Bay hospital.

The cars, driven by Reitz and Mrs. Ozarowicz, collided head-on and were badly damaged.

Cars driven by Bernard Marasch, 25, route 1, Bear Creek, and Donald Nesbitt, 23, Forest Park, Ill., collided at the intersection of a town road and County Trunk D, a mile north of Bear Creek, about 8 o'clock last night, according to county police.

Cars driven by George Walter, 38, Shorewood, and Miss Altine Jeske, 18, route 2, Seymour, collided on County Trunk G, five miles west of Seymour, at 3:30 Saturday afternoon. Herman Klistner, 39, Ninth street, Kaukauna, was cut and bruised when his car caught between the bridge and the approach on the south end of the Lawe street bridge about 3:15 Sunday morning at Kaukauna.

Klistner was going south, according to police, when his car smashed through the gate at the north end of the bridge, vaulted a 12 inch gap between the ends of the two bridge platforms which were being closed at the time, and wedged the front wheels and frame of his car between the south approach and the bridge platform.

It took police approximately 30 minutes to remove the car from where it was caught in order to close the bridge. It was raining at the time and the pavement was slippery, police said.

The only accident in Appleton over the weekend was a minor collision between cars driven by E. C. Grishaber, 1216 S. Oneida street, and Otto G. Schmitt, 914 N. Rankin street, on Rankin street about 1:30 Sunday morning. Both cars were going north on Rankin street and the accident occurred when Schmitt slowed to turn into his driveway, Grishaber hitting the Schmitt car from the rear, police said.

One large bomb dropped by the fighter-escorted bombers on the southeast coast demolished six houses. Another damaged a railroad track.

Scenes of horror accompanied the furious bombing—which caught the city unaware.

A laundry in which girls were working was hit squarely. The body of at least one woman was pulled from the wreckage.

The night of raid and counter-raid followed a Sunday of aerial sparring in which the British reported 55 German planes downed in assaults on the south of England, the midlands, northeast England and Scotland. Thirteen British planes were lost.

Little Damage Done
Bombs fell in several places on the outskirts of London during the Sunday raids, but the air ministry said they caused but "small fires and damage to property."

R.A.F. sources declared their bombers would not hesitate to attack and bomb "military objectives" in the Berlin area, but insisted raids such as that early today must not be merely retaliatory.

"If the opportunity to bomb ordnance works or electrical factories around Berlin presents itself, you may be sure we will take advantage of it," these informants said.

"But we are not going to bomb civilians or go in for terror attacks," they waste bombs, gasoline and men, the result is a few hundred civilian dead who do not impair the German war effort."

"While London surveyed the damage of the latest nazi blows at this center of empire, two morning papers supported the reprisal campaign."

The Daily Mail announced 45 per cent of its mail contained readers' "bombs Berlin" suggestions while the tabloid Daily Mirror featured a cartoon of a bomb bearing a tag labeled "To Berlin."

Willkie Still Ahead of Roosevelt, 284-247; Democrats Gain; President Picks Up 4 States

Contest Now Would Result In Close Race

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J.—As the Presidential race enters its sixth week a new state-by-state survey by the American Institute of Public Opinion—conducted during the first three weeks of August—shows the two great parties continuing to run neck-and-neck.

Wendell Willkie is still leading President Roosevelt by a small margin in electoral votes, returns from the 48 states indicate, but the President has gained slightly since the Institute's first nationwide Roosevelt-Willkie survey, reported August 4.

Four states which stood in Mr. Willkie's column at the beginning of the campaign—Oregon, Idaho, Wyoming and Connecticut—are leaning to Mr. Roosevelt by narrow margins today, the survey shows.

Nevertheless, Mr. Willkie is ahead of the President in 20 states with a combined vote in the electoral college of 264, or 18 more than the 246 which are required to win. President Roosevelt, leading in 28 states, has 247 electoral votes.

Returns from Wisconsin show Willkie leading at the present time by a vote of 51 to 49.

Two major developments of the past few days are not completely reflected in these figures.

These developments are (1) Mr. Willkie's acceptance speech at Elwood, Ind., which Republicans are counting on to boost GOP strength, and (2) the latest phases of Adolf Hitler's aerial blitzkrieg against Britain, which some observers have expected might cause additional voters to favor a third term for Roosevelt.

The greater part of the interviewing in the present survey was completed before the possible political effects of these widely differing events had time to sink in.

It must also be emphasized that there is always a margin of error involved in every sampling operation—no matter how carefully conducted—because of the size of the sample itself. In the present survey the statistical probabilities are 95 in 100 that the average error per state due to the size of sample will not exceed plus or minus four per cent.

Interpretation of the results of the survey, therefore, must take into account the number of states where the Roosevelt-Willkie percentages are within the area between 54 and 46 per cent.

Roosevelt Still Leads

In Popular Vote, 51-49

On the evidence of the Institute survey, however, an election held today would probably result in the closest race since the Wilson-Hughes election of 1916. While Willkie has a slight lead in the all-important electoral vote column, President Roosevelt—partly because of his tremendous pluralities in the South—continues to have a tiny majority of the popular vote. There has been no change in this respect since the August 4 survey. The Institute's question, put to a carefully selected cross-section of the voters in each state, asked:

"If the Presidential election were being held today, would you vote for the Republican candidate, Willkie, or the Democratic candidate, Roosevelt?"

The replies in both Institute surveys have been:

Willkie Roosevelt

August 4 survey 49% 51%

Today's survey 49 51

Twelve per cent of those interviewed (as compared with thirteen per cent three weeks ago) said they had made no definite choice or were undecided.

Willkie Gains In Big States

Possibly the most important developments of the past three weeks have been certain sectional tendencies which may, or may not, assume greater importance as the campaign progresses:

1. President Roosevelt has gained in a number of far western states, including Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana, Wyoming, Utah, Nevada, New Mexico and Arizona despite the fact that the Republican vice presidential candidate, Senator McNary, comes from the far west and has been counted on by the Republicans to help carry the section in November. One possible explanation for Mr. Roosevelt's gains in the far west is that Senator McNary has thus far taken almost no active part in the Republican campaign.

2. Wendell Willkie, on the other hand, has strengthened his grip on several of the large states east of the Mississippi, such as Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Michigan. Whereas he led in these states by relatively

284 Electoral Votes

Note by Dr. Gallup: The above figures indicate only what would happen if the election were today. They do not constitute a forecast of the outcome in November. In interpreting figures for each state it should be remembered that some margin of error is involved in every sampling operation, due to the size of the sample itself. In the present survey the statistical probabilities indicate that the average error per state resulting from the size of the sample will not exceed plus or minus 4 per cent.

247 Electoral Votes

ern states, where Mr. Willkie is leading by slight margins at the present time. If the GOP candidate can hold or increase his lead in these areas, with their rich allotments of electoral votes, he will probably enter the final stages of the race in a good position. If President Roosevelt can detach even one of these populous states, however, the electoral balance would swing to the Democrats.

Willkie's Position Vulnerable Today

Willkie's position in the race today, like Governor Landon's at a similar time in 1936, is thus extremely vulnerable. Unlike President Roosevelt, he cannot count on a large and solid bloc of states in the South. The course of events in Europe, furthermore, may have a powerful effect on the trends of political sentiment here. In the past, President Roosevelt's popularity has risen sharply with the intensifying of Europe's crises.

Mr. Willkie's effectiveness as a campaigner has still to be measured, however, and this may prove to be a counter-balancing factor in the GOP candidate's favor.

In 1936, Institute surveys showed that Governor Landon led President Roosevelt in electoral votes throughout July and the early part of August, but fell behind following the business upturn which began in the late summer and following Landon's first major speeches. By August 23, 1936—almost exactly four years ago—the Institute's third state-by-state survey on Roosevelt and Landon showed the following division:

Roosevelt Landon

Aug. 23, 1936 52.5% 47.5%

Popular Vote 274 257

Electoral Votes 274 257

In its Presidential surveys from now until election day the Institute will use more than 1100 regional interviewers, as well as special investigators in the crucial states. ## The Jointless Debate

Here is America all dressed up in its store suit these last 23 years looking for the chance to show the rest of the world just what democracy in action looks like and now the President is so busy the great skit cannot be staged.

It wasn't until the idealists ran away with the election in 1916 that the country really was put on exhibition. Then we learned that ears and fingernails must be kept in shape for the arrival of company any minute. The tale continued that our little brown brothers, and our little almond-eyed brothers, and our nose-ringed cannibal brothers, and our Latin, Russian and Greek brothers, were all wondering about the miracles of democracy and were liable to drop in for a cup of Java, a mug of beer, or perhaps a loan or gift at any time.

A joint debate between candidates for the same office has been the diamond-studded necklace of democracy since General Washington took the oath of office. And now the President's won't play.

We have states in this union that have so taken democracy to heart laws have been enacted compelling candidates for governor, senator and representative in Congress, to tour the state speaking from the same platform, and in no other way, to appeal for votes. That is certainly democracy at its best. Everything is open, visible, and on the table. When politics becomes a skin game, however, and tricks are pulled from coat tails, the open debate is always kicked into the cellar.

Certainly if democracy does not rest upon a foundation of honest public discussion then the people have been most shamefully deluded from their kindergarten days.

There would be no difficulty in staging the debates. No one has suggested "a barn-storming tour" excepting Cobra Ickes who is trying to escape the debate and what it likely would reveal to the American people. The famous Lincoln-Douglass debates were only 7 in number but they served a remarkable public purpose even in a day before either radio or short-hand was known. Their benefit reached far beyond the crowds who heard the speakers whose voices were not magnified by modern apparatus that brings clear tones to the most remote listener. They were reported in print and read together.

In fact about three debates would be all-sufficient. And the President would not have to move from the eastern seaboard to indulge in them.

Mr. Roosevelt and his party, not only in their refusal of Mr. Wilkie's offer, but the hateful, bitter method employed in giving a negative response are subject to the reasonable charge of acting like two-year olds.

The effort to avoid the debate by cloaking the President in the warm robe of patriotism is quite absurd. To one so familiar with the record Mr. Roosevelt's side in each debate could be delivered in less time than he employs motoring around on those "tours of inspection" which are grandiose campaign gestures. They are as much show and pretense as an inspection of the Guard by a governor who walks up and down the line of men hoping they can get to the end without tripping. They are an inheritance from royal days when those inspected were thought to become inspired at the ceremony of their king looking them over.

We hope to one day see one of these tours of inspection as displayed in the movie house. They are pretty and attractive. The camera man knows just where to get. A graceful chamber or destroyer with our still victorious flag kissing the waves usually turn, the background. But from the security of applause by the theatre crowds even this propaganda may be forced into exile leaving the President standing alone wrapped in the flag, his hair a little unkempt from the forced "draft."

No quantity of reason or logic is ever likely to get the President into joint debate with a grizzly bear like Wilkie who never would let him side-step, evade, conceal or otherwise treat an issue without meeting it.

"Here a Wall Street, There A Wall Street", Et Cetera

Down in Illinois Mayor Kelly almost broke into sobs as he described the nomination of Mr. Wilkie "by Wall Street." Mr. Kelly's machine, which depends for its fuel upon the bawdy houses and gambling dens of Chicago, still has a perfect right to point the attention of the country to the menace of "Wall Street."

But we noted that almost at the same time that Chicago's machine leader was on the platform Senator Holt, a deserter from the New Deal, was charging Mr. Roosevelt and every other supporter of conscription with being led by "Wall Street bankers" who apparently are at the bottom of everything wrong in the world.

Every time that Adolf Hitler takes the platform he attacks England's "Wall Street," and if he were at war with America he would be musically dropping the same liquid words spoken by Kelly, the enraptured humanitarian of Chicago, and Holt, the scrambling West Virginia visionary.

If we are to remain a capitalistic country we must have some respect for property since property rights set off capitalism from socialism. Our laws have always recognized the right of property that exists even in language. Thus authors, and even journalists, copyright their works. If some man had a copyright to the epithet Wall Street he would make more than the street is worth.

But if the New Deal leader is directed by Wall Street and his Republican opponent nominated by the same narrow alley, we must conclude that our campaign is a figment of the imagination or a droll little show put together like Punch and Judy or Uncle Tom's Cabin to entertain little folk that others may hear the childish gags.

Remember the Name—Oscar Hannibal Muldoon

Another great record has been made by America fit to be carved into everlasting granite along with great battles such as Bunker Hill, Gettysburg, San Juan and Chateau-Thierry.

In 1932 our government only had 600,000 employees in addition, of course, to the army and navy. But now we have passed the million mark. And all in seven years.

To be exact we have 1,011,066 persons on the federal payroll and Oscar Hannibal Muldoon was the one millionth.

The record is all the more wonderful because it was attained against stifling odds, against the vigorous defense of the administration to hold these office-seekers out.

It may be remembered that the President promised to reduce the 600,000 he found on the public payroll when he took office. And how he has been fighting to do so. But they scampered through the back door and clamored over the kitchen roof. And if it were not for Mr. Roosevelt and Tommy the Cork it might easily have been two million.

Long live the President! May his promises never be forgotten and never be kept.

A Tale of Propaganda

While the war was on the Germans covered France with a comic strip showing an English and a French soldier about to dive into a swimming pool labelled "bloodbath." The Frenchman dived in but the Englishman took out his pipe, lit it and walked off. There was much use of the expression "England will fight to the last Frenchman."

A form of this propaganda was used in Norway, Holland and Belgium. It may have been quite effective although it is impossible to say how many it deflected from their duty.

But the stubborn stand the British have taken alone in the world against all the forces of totalitarianism will bury this canard 50 cubits deep, although it has some facts to support it.

England has always been a wonder at getting other nations to help her fight her battles. But she has never been a coward. No one has fought more desperately or heroically down through the centuries than the English soldier.

Although the Germans never intended this propaganda to be complimentary to the tight little island, when you examine it closely it has certain aspects high in praise. It indicates how carefully the British government has always guarded its people. There is nothing wrong in that. Let us see to it that the American government guards its people as effectively.

Opinions of Others

One of those who knew him when—or says so—insists that the Republican nominee's name is Lewis Wendell Wilkie, not Wendell Lewis Wilkie, and that the possessor of the name, finding an error by an army clerk consistent with his own feelings, let the transposition ride. If this is right, the change of name augurs well for Mr. Wilkie's political success. Grant was named Hiram Ulysses Grant until a mistake at West Point enrolled him as Ulysses Simpson Grant. Coolidge was originally John Calvin. Cleveland was Stephen Grover and Wilson was Thomas Woodrow. Each of these men, long before he became president, dropped a distasteful name and took on the name by which greatness knew him.

A change of given name appears to bring political fortune. It may be one more favorable omen for an extraordinary political future.—New York Sun.

More than 400 American manufacturers are registered with the Munitions Control Board as actual or potential producers of implements of war.

BY DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN
Washington—Backstage, the most vital phase of the Anglo-American discussions has not been island bases around the Panama Canal—though they are important—but the disposition of the British fleet in case of a Nazi victory.

The United States wants Britain's island bases in the western hemisphere, but these are not nearly so vital as defending New York, Boston and Philadelphia. And if the British fleet falls into the hands of Germany, no force now in the possession of the United States can prevent successful attacks on the Atlantic seaboard if Hitler wants to make them, so long as the United States still has a one-ocean navy.

At present, the number of U. S. warships in the Atlantic is not enough to ward off even the Italian fleet, let alone the combined German and British navies. And even if one-half of the United States fleet is shifted from the Pacific, leaving California open to Japanese attack, this half could not prevent a joint German-British landing in New England, New Jersey or Maryland.

Therefore, what Roosevelt has been worried about, and is definitely discussing with the British, is what becomes of the British fleet in case of defeat. This is where the destroyer trade first entered the picture; i. e., U. S. naval help for Great Britain now in return for British naval help to the United States later.

WOULD ENGLAND SURRENDER?
In this connection, one of the things considered by American diplomats was whether the British could deliver their fleet to United States and Canada in case of defeat. The Nazis might threaten to wipe out entire cities in retaliation if the British fleet dashed across the Atlantic to the United States. Might not the British surrender, as did the French fleet, is the important question.

This discussion brought out the obvious fact that Britain is in a different position than France, since large parts of her empire are in Canada, Australia and New Zealand. If her fleet could escape to aid the remainder of the empire, Britain might in time weld together the dominions in cooperation with the United States, into the last remaining barricade to Nazi domination of the world.

Even more significant is the feeling of some Englishmen that the empire might be better off if it were reconstructed around Australia and Canada, in cooperation with the United States, thus getting away from the idea that the British Isles—now too close to European turmoil—are the nerve center of the empire.

While such discussion is largely theoretical at present, it points to a very genuine desire on the part of the British to lend the fleet to Canada and the United States, in return for definite naval aid for this country—at once.

To Henry Wallace the town of Elwood, Indiana, is memorable only as the place where, once and for all, he settled the question of how to pronounce the word "tomato."

He went to Elwood two years ago, unaware that Wilkie had ever lived there, to speak at a tomato festival. He opened the speech by telling the audience that Washington hostesses tried to make him say, "to-mah-to," and it went hard with him because back in Iowa he always used to say, "to-may-to."

So he proposed to settle the question right there in Elwood. He put it to a vote. "Those in favor of 'to-mah-to,' raise their hands," commanded Henry. Not a hand was raised. "Those in favor of 'to-may-to?'" Every hand went up.

Henry came back to Washington and told Mrs. Wallace that he had been vindicated, that he didn't have to follow the vogue of Capital hostesses any more. But Mrs. Wallace took the side of the opposition, declaring that in Mexico, where the tomato comes from, the word must have been pronounced "to-mah-to."

Result is that when the Wallaces sit down to dinner, Henry starts off with "to-may-to" juice, and Mrs. Wallace has "to-mah-to" juice, and the chances of reconciliation on this issue are very slight indeed.

THE CHIEF OF STAFF

Chief of staff of the U. S. army, General George C. Marshall, likes to go canoeing. Like any boy friend and his sweetie, he and Mrs. Marshall take a picnic lunch and hire a canoe on the Potomac, at a dollar an hour. . . . Perfect label is the name of Marshall's chauffeur—Sergeant Powder. . . . Another is the name of one of his favorite riding horses at Fort Myer—"Prepare." . . . Marshall is often too busy to go out for lunch. He sends his Negro runner to the soda bar for a glass of milk and a piece of pie. . . . Asked to pose for a photograph looking at an atlas, Marshall made sure the book was not open at Europe. He found a map of Missouri, saying, "I don't want to do a Welles." . . . As chief of staff, his base pay is $9,000, plus allowances of $2,200, plus quarters at Fort Myer. . . . On his doorstep is a brass plate bearing Chinese symbols meaning, "Marshall, Commander of American Compound, Tientsin." . . . Just the other day, Marshall wrote a letter to a Greek grocer in Uniontown, Pa., Marshall's birthplace. The grocer, who knew him as a boy, asked how he could be of service in the present emergency.

The army guards its famous bombight so jealously that even its sister service, the United States navy, has been unable to get it. This is supposed to be a service secret, but the two military branches have been squabbling for several years over their bombights. Former Navy Secretary Charles Edison several times wanted the president to "use his influence" to prevail on army chiefs to turn the treasured device over to the navy.

Although an ardent navyite, Roosevelt has refused to intervene. He takes the position that competition between the two services keeps them on their toes. Apparently there is good ground for this view because the navy's bombight, while less advertised than the army's, also is of top caliber. It is a development of a sight originally invented by a Hollander, because of which some military men believe that the Nazis know its basic principles. The navy asserts its sight is as good as the army's—a claim that brings tolerant smiles from army airmen.

The army bombight has been quietly improved recently through development of a new Sperry gyroscope. The gyroscope is basic in bombights, since balance is the essential in accurate aerial aiming.

ROOSEVELT'S BOSS

Ambassador Josephus Daniels, en route from Mexico earlier in the summer, dropped in on his boss, the president, at the hour of a White House press conference. The president, who once served under Daniels as assistant secretary of the navy, saw him in the group and called out, laughing:

"What are you doing here, Mr. Ambassador? We don't allow diplomats at these press conferences."

Daniels drew himself up with pretended pride. "I am not here as a diplomat," he said, "but as editor of The Raleigh News and Observer."

"That won't do either," retorted the president. "We don't allow editors; only reporters."

Daniels would not be downed. "Very well, then, I am here as a reporter for The News and Observer."

The president gave up. "All right, boss," he said, "take a seat."

A Bystander In Washington

BY JACK STINNETT

Washington—Mrs. M. A. Kinslow of Long Beach, Calif., asks that I explain who are the "isolationist bloc."

Whoa and whee, Mrs. Kinslow! I may have been guilty of using the term "isolationist bloc," but I hope not often. Some of the writers here and a lot of the talkers have been pretty free with the phrase, but mostly on the theory that when they say "isolationist," they don't mean it. They figure that everybody knows they don't mean it.

If there is any such thing as an "isolationist bloc," I haven't been able to find it. I doubt if there's a senator who would tie that tag on his lapel. As a matter of fact, some of the senators who have been critical of phases of the national defense program and the administration foreign policy are nearer anti-isolationist than isolationist, if I understand the term.

Proof of this is the consistent unanimity with which nearly all the defense measures have passed and the overwhelming majorities by which some of the most controversial have been written into law.

Polled The Newsmen
Now if we understand each other, I'll try to give you a list . . . a list compiled by polling the newsboys "on the Hill" . . . the men who work with the Senate day in and day out. I didn't ask who were the members of the "isolationist bloc." What I did ask was something like this: If you had to define a bloc of administration opponents on foreign policy, of the men who think and argue that too many acts of the administration in the present crisis are leading toward war, of men who insist that we are in no danger of attack from anybody, whom among members of the Senate would you include?

Here's the list I got:
Bone, Wash.; Clapper, Kas.; Clark, Mo.; Clark, Idaho; Danaher, Conn.; Donahoe, Ohio; Downey, Calif.; Holt, W. Va.; Johnson, Colo.; Johnson, Calif.; McCarran, Nev.; Nye, N. D.; Reynolds, N. C.; Thomas, Idaho; Vandenberg, Mich.; Walsh, Mass.; Wheeler, Mont.; La Follette, Wis.; and Lundeen, Minn.

Now be certain of this: There are more shades of thought represented in that group than there are colors in the rainbow. Eleven of them are Democrats; six are Republicans, one is a Progressive and one is a Farmer-Laborite. They run the whole gamut from Reynolds, who hasn't been very vociferous in his criticism lately, to Vandenberg, Clark (Mo.) and Nye, who have been very outspoken, and on to Holt, bitter and scathing toward administration policies.

Not Always Together
They can't be said to hang together always, either.

When the measure for calling out the National Guard and reserve officers for a year's training went through the Senate, there were only seven votes against, and it memory serves, one of those was from a senator not included in this list.

When Senator Adams' amendment to keep the National Guard in this country was rejected by a narrow margin of one vote, all the above senators voted for it. Does that answer your question, Mrs. Kinslow?

Washington Ponders

Fate of Escaped Nazi

Ottawa — External affairs department officials said last night the disposition of the case of Manuel Fischer, 30, German civilian who escaped a week ago from a northwestern Ontario internment camp, is under consideration in Washington.

They offered no comment on a dispatch from International Falls, Minn., where Fischer is held by United States border guards, that Fischer may be deported to Spain.

Interment officials earlier had said that arrangements for the return of Fischer, a German merchant seaman who was interned in Britain as an enemy alien and later transferred to Canada, were being made. They would make no definite statement, however, on these arrangements.

(Editor's note—During the absence of John W. Winkard, the Appleton Post-Crescent's correspondent at Madison, his daily column will be written by men prominent in state government. The views expressed by these guest columnists are distinctly their own.)

BY VERNON G. ZELLER,
Director, State Department of Securities

Madison—During the absence of your regular correspondent, I have been offered the opportunity of writing a guest column and would like to call the attention of the general public to the functions of state securities regulation in the state of Wisconsin. The security regulation in Wisconsin represents the administration of the laws passed by your legislature regarding securities transactions. I feel that it is important that the functions of the Department of Securities be briefly outlined for the benefit of investors in order that they might know how to use this department.

The department of securities has jurisdiction over the licensing of security dealers operating within this state as well as licensing of agents and registration of securities that are qualified for sale within the state of Wisconsin. Since this department has been established by the present administration, a very serious attempt has been made to carefully watch the activities of all security dealers and agents and in a number of cases dealers have lost their right to sell securities in Wisconsin because of malpractice and inequitable dealing with customers.

One impression that the public seems to have that we would like to correct is the fact that we can secure the return of funds lost through investment. Neither this department nor any state department nor any national governmental body can fulfill this function. Our activity is limited to the recommendation of criminal prosecution where such recommendation is deemed advisable or to stopping certain individuals from selling securities. It is our thought that if investors were to completely understand this fact and make inquiries of this department before making investments, some types of losses could be avoided. A specific example of this is brought out in quoting in part an inquiry just received by this department:

"A little over a year ago a representative of the 'X' Gold Mine sold me 2,000 shares of stock and represented that the mine was in operation and producing and would soon pay a dividend. I have attempted to secure financial information from them but have been unsuccessful. Now I am wondering whether or not this company was authorized to sell stock in Wisconsin. Any information you can give me in this line would be appreciated."

Our records show that this stock was not qualified for sale in Wisconsin nor was the individual who sold the stock licensed to sell. Had the purchaser of this stock inquired of this department before making this purchase, the loss which we feel is bound to result from this investment could have been avoided.

Moreover, there will be nothing that we can do to secure the return of the money invested in this venture. It may be possible to bring criminal action against the individual that sold the stock provided he can be found but this will not replace the money originally invested. Had this purchaser followed a few simple rules of investment and made use of the facilities available to him as a citizen of this state, such a loss would have been avoided.

Our recommendations are never to purchase securities from a stranger, either through personal solicitation, by mail or by telephone. If the investor is satisfied that the agent represents an investment house that is registered to sell securities in Wisconsin, then he should apply all of the fundamen-

QUININE PREVENTS DEAFNESS

Last autumn a general specialist, that is, a specialist in the eye, ear, nose, throat or whatever else you have in your head except brains, hit on a swell idea for a paper, forthwith prepared the paper and read it before a medical association and, unfortunately for the public or fortunately for the general specialist, as you prefer, the main theme of the paper received considerable publicity when it was passed along to the laity in a release from one of the press service bureaus.

It seemed that the general specialist found some statistics which indicated that among 234 cases of nerve deafness and 832 cases of other forms of deafness more than four times as many of the former had taken quinine some time than of the latter. The specialist, naturally, did not mention how many of the patients with nerve deafness had never taken any quinine, for that would tend to impair the weight of his inference.

And furthermore, if you are easily convinced, some one found that the proportion of infants born deaf was greater than usual at the time of the influenza epidemic during the first World War and inferred that probably more expectant mothers had taken quinine either as a prophylactic against flu infection as a remedy, and hence the deafness of the babies.

Now it is not unreasonable to believe that deafness or worse may happen to the unborn infant or to the expectant mother herself who makes the mistake of taking large doses of quinine for any purpose.

It is not unreasonable to believe that deafness or worse may happen to the unborn infant or to the expectant mother herself who makes the mistake of taking large doses of quinine for any purpose.

In order to qualify securities for sale in the state of Wisconsin, the issuer of those securities must place on file with this department financial information as well as collateral information relative to the nature of that security and it must meet the requirements of the laws that have been laid down by your legislature. If these requirements are met, the security is registered for sale. The fact that a security is registered for sale, however, does not mean that it is safe to invest in that security and that no loss might result from such an investment. The investor must bear in mind that economic changes alter the status of any security and that any investment might be potential loss. Naturally it is also important to call attention to the fact that the security becomes more speculative as the prospect of appreciation increases or as the amount of interest return increases.

There is no doubt but that the legislature in passing a securities law had in mind the protection of the savings of residents of this state. The effective administration of this law can be facilitated if investors in this state cooperate with the department of securities in running down individuals who operate in this state without benefit of license and it is the desire of this department that any activities of questionable nature be immediately reported to Madison. Without such cooperation we cannot protect individual investors. Many people who have losses from investments of such nature are unwilling to disclose the fact. Consequently the promoter who makes his living from preying upon unwary individuals continues to operate unhampered.

without the advice of her physician. Injury to the hearing is one of the usual effects of quinine poisoning. By the same token, deafness due to overdose of quinine is rarely if ever a permanent deafness. It clears up completely a few hours or days after the quinine is stopped, in nearly every instance.

If there was an increased amount of deafness, congenital or acquired, during or following the 1918 flu epidemic, the more reasonable explanation would be that the flu itself or complications of it involving the nose, throat and ears caused the deafness.

In my own opinion quinine should be regarded rather as a preventive of deafness. It deserves to be so regarded because, in the opinion of good physicians in all parts of the world (one grain three times a day for adults; once a day for young children) has real preventive value against the flu or other respiratory infection when such infection is prevalent in the community; and because two grains of quinine sulfate in pill, tablet or capsule, four times a day, is one of the best home remedies in the early treatment of any acute respiratory infection. You see, most deafness is a consequence of such respiratory infection.

Say Natural Gas Cuts Cost For Consumer

Officials of 2 Firms Appear at Hearing Before Commission

Madison—(P)—Officials of two natural gas companies said today use of their product would result in substantial savings for Wisconsin consumers.

The statements were made before the public service commission by Paul Kayser of Houston, Texas, president of the Wisconsin Natural Gas company, and Don Emery, vice president and general counsel for the Phillips Petroleum company, parent concern of the Independent Natural Gas company. The two companies have applied for authority to construct distribution lines in the state.

"Perhaps there won't be much of a saving at the start," Kayser said, "but in four or five years, after we get things going, there should be substantial reductions in home gas bills."

Encouraged by the commission to elaborate, Kayser said:

"Well, there might be 10 per cent reduction right off the bat, and it should run up to about 20 per cent. That is something to talk about, and another thing to remember is that natural gas has twice the heating value of manufactured gas."

Claim Aid to Industry

Kayser predicted use of natural gas would stimulate industry, and that the price of the product would decline as volume of consumption increased.

"We are prepared to supply distributing companies with gas at a price less than manufactured gas," Emery told the commission. "Industrial consumers will always have available a sufficient supply of the product. As for the housewife, natural gas will offer a saving and convenience that no other fuel can provide."

Emery said, since his firm proposed to sell to distributing companies, they would fix rates.

It is expected the distributors will pass along the savings in proportion to their own," he said.

No Official Challenge

Neither official challenged the jurisdiction of the commission. Emery cited several Wisconsin Supreme Court cases which he claimed exempted his firm, but said he welcomed "any inquiry—either by a private or public body."

William H. Spohn of Madison, counsel for Kayser, said the question of jurisdiction probably would have to be settled by the supreme court, and urged the commission not to "surrender" any rights during the interim.

Opposition to entry of the firms into the state, expressed in several quarters, was expected to be heard late today or tomorrow.

The Natural Gas Pipeline company of America, which already has announced letting a $1,200,000 contract for manufacture of pipe to carry the gas, has been invited to send representatives to the hearing. It has filed no formal application for operating authority, Commissioner Robert A. Nixon said.

About 16 girls are present.

Navy Won't Take Over Site of World's Fair

Manchester, N. H.—(P)—Navy Secretary Frank Knox said today the navy department has declined to accept a proposal that it take over the site of the New York world's fair for a naval training station.

"The navy could use the place only temporarily at best," Knox asserted, "and it wouldn't be worthwhile."

He added that the only possible use the navy could make of the site would be for barracks for crews assigned to new ships at the Brooklyn navy yard, and said these crews already were cared for.

Knox, spending a few days at his summer home, said he understood the army also had turned down a proposal to take over the fair grounds for a camp.

British Airmen Surprise World

R.A.F. Maintains Its Morale and Strength In Clashes With foe

BY DEVON FRANCIS, Associated Press Aviation Editor

New York—(P)—A remarkable performance—remarkable in that it was not expected—is being put on by Great Britain's Royal Air Force, and any immediate turn of events in the battle of England may well hinge on the morale of the opposing airmen.

England entered the war as an underdog in air power.

The "shadow factory" system of aircraft manufacture—by which scattered plants produced airplane parts—had not been too successful, and Canada's empire air training scheme, by which 25,000 pilots were to be turned out annually, was slow in reaching its proper tempo.

The British claim that the isles are making more warplanes than the Germans now, a year after the outbreak of hostilities, is for the moment immaterial. Certainly they are making enough to replace their daily losses.

Match Nazi Fighters

The important aspect of the air fighting, in which Germany is making every bid for definite air superiority before launching other moves in the blitzkrieg, is the maintenance of morale and pilot strength in the R.A.F.

Germany has pilots to spare. During the battle of France, England apparently had a severe shortage of fighter airmen. British pilots, by their own accounts, fought hour after hour to the point of exhaustion.

Yet today the British appear to be matching the German fighters, plane for plane and pilot for pilot. Moreover, the weekend British forays by air on German depots in France and Germany bespeak a reserve of men who can fly the "heavy stuff," bombers the handling of which requires many hours of cockpit and tactical training.

Two aspects of the German air attack may be of more than passing significance, the let-up in the daylight mass bombing attacks and recourse to the British system of night bombings.

The German's own chance of strategy may belie their assertion that they are encountering "weak" British fighter forces.

Over and above that is the element of morale. Harold Hartney, commander of America's first pursuit group in the World War, characterizes the British airman as the world's best.

Anti-American Groups Encouraged, He Says

Cascade, Wis.—(P)—William C. Maas, Republican candidate for the United States senatorial nomination, charged in an address here yesterday that the New Deal encouraged various groups seeking to change the American form of government.

"The New Deal's appointees to high positions of trust in our national government have actually condoned radical agitators and virtually condoned the latter's subversive activities by attending their meetings as speakers or guests," Maas asserted.

Walks Thirty Miles to Report Floods Will Delay Products

BY GLADWIN HILL

New York—(P)—It's great weather for walking.

If you have any doubt, give a gander at this gallery of demon-bunion-debilities who turned up this week:

Glen Smith of Mudville, N. Y., walked two miles to turn in a fire alarm.

J. A. Coffey, of Linville, N. C., farmer, walked 30 miles to report that floods would delay his produce a few days.

Peter Sonts of Troy, N. Y., walked two round trips to New York City—a total of 616 miles—seeing about enlisting in the army.

Julius Kovack of San Francisco walked 2,500 miles to attend the American Legion convention in Boston.

Apparently the weather was invigorating all around, because there were a variety of other astonishing accomplishments—

One Paul Cotteau swam 114 miles off Florida.

Donald McNair of Santa Cruz, Calif., swam 353 feet—under water!

Angel Stevens, 24, a Los Angeles stenographer, learned to fly an airplane between dawn and sunset the same day.

Two Milwaukee softball teams played 1,250 innings in 19 hours.

Hans Zinsser Writes Absorbing Tale About Medical Scientist

By Jean Wiley Thickens

"AS I REMEMBER HIM," BY HANS ZINSSER

The idea of writing the life story of one whose identity the reader never learns thru the entire 443 pages of the text is an extraordinary one for any biographer. Obviously the author, Hans Zinsser, uses the thrilling and eventful life of his friend "R. S."—a famous but unnamed medical scientist—merely to show his readers a cross section of life as it was lived in the United States and Europe by various men of science over a period of the past 50 years, and to demonstrate the vast progress which has been made in medicine, bacteriology and hygiene during that half century.

Hans Zinsser, is familiar to many readers as the author of "Rats, Lice and History" which appeared three or four years ago. That book while its subject was of almost universal will be the master of ceremonies and there'll be community singing, led by Marty Van Rooy. The stage is going to look like an old-time barbershop.

Fellows interested in the tournament may contact Don Anderson at the Post-Crescent, phone number 543. There aren't any regulations for entering or any deadline for registration, but the sooner quartets notify the Post-Crescent they will participate the easier it will be to arrange a fast-moving program.

There will be a piano and accompanist ready for outfits that use this type of accompaniment. Quartets may also use guitars or no accompaniment at all—it makes no difference.

In case of rain, (there couldn't be any next week) the tournament will be held in the park pavilion.

Several of the groups are planning to appear attired in derby hats and wide mustaches, reminiscent of the days when harmony was just as important as hair-cutting in American barber shops.

Baptist Leader Is Killed in 13-Story Plunge From Building

St. Paul, Minn.—(P)—The Rev. James W. Herring, 43, of Wauwatosa, Wis., executive secretary of the Wisconsin Baptist state convention, was killed yesterday in a plunge from the thirteenth floor of a downtown building.

Coroner C. A. Ingerson said it was suicide. Attendants at the Mounds Park hospital, where he was a patient, said Mr. Herring left the institution for a walk Sunday morning.

An elevator operator at the Pioneer building told police he took a man to the 13th floor shortly before noon. Police later found a window in a washroom open.

He came to Wisconsin last Sept. 1 to assume his duties with the Baptist convention as successor to Dr. Abram LeGrande. He was a former pastor of Baptist churches at Peru, Ind., and Pontiac, Mich.

His widow, Grace, and a daughter survive. Funeral services will be held Tuesday.

Maps Out Security And Economic Plan

Plum City—(P)—Harold E. Stafford of Chippewa Falls, candidate for the Progressive nomination for governor, said at a Pierce county American Legion picnic yesterday that "World war veterans support a strong national defense program to forestall danger from abroad, and a program of economic security to check assaults from within our borders."

"As a veteran and a legionnaire I realize what unpreparedness cost us in the last war," he said. "We must bend our efforts toward building a modern and intelligently planned first-class defense against aggressors."

Trains Carry Units to Front During Night

Patterson, Assistant Secretary of War, Is Visitor at Maneuvers

Camp McCoy, Wis.—(P)—The red sixth corps army, guarding defense positions in the large scale "Battle of Wisconsin," was reinforced by additional troops today following completion of a successful night train movement of the 63rd brigade, comprised of the 32nd Wisconsin-Michigan national guard divisions.

With all lights blacked out, three trains loaded with soldiers arrived exactly on schedule at Raymond station east of Camp McCoy. The brigade, nearly 1,000 men strong, detained under the protection of advance detachments which had come last night and Saturday by truck.

Meanwhile the red 33rd Illinois division launched a steady counter-attack forcing back blue troops which previously had seized Trout Falls and the high ground east of the LaCrosse river. The blue forces, including the 38th, Kentucky, Indiana and West Virginia divisions, dropped back nearly three miles to the west slope of Purdy Ridge where they stubbornly were defending their positions.

The red fifth (regular army) division was concentrated on the north flank, ready to attack in a south or southeasterly direction, if the expected corps' attack is launched along the entire front.

A "lost battalion," of the 147th Infantry (Cincinnati), joined its regiment in a brigade team, commanded by Brigadier General Robert S. Beighler. The battalion had been sent to Millston by the blues as a covering force, but had proceeded to a point west and south of Knapp when it was cut off. Gen. Beighler sent a strong motor patrol to Millston to protect the north flank.

The blue mechanized force started a three-headed attack at dawn down Highway 12, County Trunk B and Highway 16, and observers expected it would develop into a general battle along the entire front sometime today.

Patterson Arrives

Assistant Secretary of War Robert Patterson arrived at the second army headquarters early today by train. He and Lieut. General Stanley H. Ford, second army commander, immediately started in a driving mist on a tour of the battle area.

Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, left yesterday after a 24-hour tour of the maneuver area, "highly pleased" with the results of the three-week training.

Meanwhile troops of the 32nd division, Wisconsin and Michigan national guard, were rushed to the battle area in an effort to curb the advance of the invading fifth army corps.

The sixth corps defenders were forced back four miles yesterday by a mass attack of the 149th Kentucky infantry, supported by the 138th Kentucky field artillery.

The attack secured possession of the high ground between Squaw Creek and the LaCrosse river and pushed a salient well into the defenders' lines. At the same time the 37th Ohio division drove north to protect the flank and rear of the advance elements.

Maj. Gen. Irving A. Fish, commanding the sixth corps defenders, withdrew his 106th cavalry to Millston and concentrated the fifth regular army division in the vicinity of Oak Ridge to prepare for a possible counter-attack.

Gen. Fish moved his headquarters to Catawba, anticipating the swing of battle toward Sparta and the LaCrosse valley.

Johnson Sees Immediate Need For Clarity in Foreign Policy

BY EUGEN S. JOHNSON

Washington, D. C.—A month by month recounting of war department testimony before the congressional committees as to our military requirements would make a ludicrous showing—and it would be most unfair.

It started with preparation for an army of about 400,000 and it has now reached a projection of 4,000,000. In comparison with cold precision of nazi military planning, it makes our general staff look like a bunch of bush-leaguers.

The answer to that is this, it is not the business of a general staff to plan policy. When these military estimates were first made our government was giving no attention to "hemisphere defense" and the great "safety belt" around the Americas or the conventions of Panama and Havana.

Step by step in the rapidly expanding policy of intervention everywhere, our general staff has been confronted with new and lightning-like changes in policy. There is this difference between the harnessing of nazi foreign policy with nazi military preparation—that Hitler planned nothing on foreign policy that his general staff hadn't been told to prepare in military strength and wasn't given time to prepare. In our case, the whole surprising brain-storm shift in a constantly increasing foreign policy of threat and aggression, has proceeded with no regard whatever to our military preparation to make it good and with no sufficient allowance of time and money to do so.

General Marshall's talk about an army of 3 to 4 million men was wholly based on a new diplomatic theory that we are to police every American country from the north pole to Cape Horn. That theory is utterly fantastic and impossible. We can't afford it, couldn't do it and have no business indulging in any such popular deceptions and ludicrous international posturing.

It is about time that this government settled down and decided exactly what its foreign policy is going to be and, more precisely, as controlling that, exactly what policy it can enforce, without absurdity and possible disaster, within the realistic and reasonable limits of its present and immediately potential strength on land, sea and in the air.

Strategy in Pacific Is Important Factor

In that connection, the immediate controlling nubbin is naval and political policy in the Pacific. As between our necessary defensive policy of remaining dominant on both American coasts as far as Natal in Brazil and in addition to that of maintaining a threatening attitude in Asia, Indo-China and the East Indies, there is a difference of unestimated billions of dollars of expense and of comparative safety as contrasted with sprawling all over the map and constantly risking not only our prestige but our peace and even our existence.

This is a question that has been scarcely even debated. For what stake, reason or obligation are we becoming so insecure in the Atlantic because the bulk of our fleet is in the Pacific that Mr. Bullitt can tell our people that we are in as grave a danger of invasion as was France a year ago?

The foundation of that part of our policy should be brought promptly into discussion and thrashed out to some understandable and defensible conclusion. There is no space to discuss it in this short column—or in a dozen columns—and continued columnar discussion just doesn't click. But, in all this dazzling confusion of kaleidoscopic change and mountainous expansion of debt and taxes there is no fundamental of more importance or more poignantly needing the immediate attention of the American people than just why and how we have to defend the status quo in Asia as well as in the Americas.

Milwaukee—(P)—Edward Yanke, 64, fell to his death yesterday from the Locust street bridge to the banks of the Milwaukee river, a drop of 60 feet. He had returned home recently from a hospital where he underwent an operation.

ly after noon, but returned less than an hour later.

"The planes were unable to complete their mission because of the fog," said Major T. W. Blackburn, air force commander.

Major Hugo P. Rush, who commanded the flight, said he took his plane over the camp area, but ordered the other bombers to return when they were still about 10 miles from their objective.

Major Blackburn cancelled the balance of yesterday's schedule and the three early morning flights planned for today. At mid-morning it appeared unlikely the sky would clear for hours.

Hundreds of persons visited the airport over the week-end to get a glimpse of the planes.

Collecting Salt, Pepper Sets Is Hobby of Menasha Woman

Menasha—No one would have any trouble finding salt and pepper to season foodstuffs at the home of Mrs. Nye Schwabs, 115 Brighton drive, because she has about 260 pairs of salt and pepper shakers and they're not empty.

Those salt and pepper shakers are the result of a hobby, started about 12 years ago, when Mrs. Schwabs' mother gave her a set of blue dragon salt and pepper shakers. Since that time Mrs. Schwabs has collected the pairs with keener interest each year. Friends and relatives from Texas, California, Wisconsin and other states have sent her shaker pairs. When relatives or friends travel during vacation time, invariably they bring Mrs. Schwabs a gift of another pair.

Mrs. Schwabs catalogs her salt and pepper shakers according to number, style and design as well as material for she has shakers of China, pewter, metal, silver, glass of all colors, clay, pottery and wood.

about how she secured each pair and how it happened. To be purchased, even to the story about repurchasing her daughter for spending so many nickels when the daughter was saving those nickels to purchase a set for her mother's Christmas present.

A friend who traveled in Mexico during the summer, sent her a pair of Mexican vase shakers and another friend, the father of a sister-in-law who works in the movie studios in Hollywood and painted some of the scenes on the "Gone with the Wind" set, promised to secure a pair of salt and pepper shakers from one of the pictures soon.

Mrs. Schwabs could set a table with salt and pepper shakers, colorfully representing the fruits, for she has pairs fashioned as lemons, raspberries, strawberries, cherries, tangerines, oranges, pears, pineapples, peaches, apples and tomatoes in midge and medium sizes. If one desired a table in floral patterns, she could furnish individual salt and pepper shakers fashioned as flower pots, tulips, chrysanthemums or if one preferred a vegetable motif, she could bring out mushrooms, cucumbers, corn in three kinds, sweet, field, and popcorn; or an animal and bird motif for children parties might bring out the pairs of shakers representing in color as well as design, pandas, sea chicks, pelicans, ducks, guinea fowls, dogs, cats, chipmunks, rabbits, frogs, horses, elephants, puppies, scotties, owls, beagle hounds, bulldogs and many others.

4 Accidents at Menasha; Two Persons Hurt

Three Cars Involved In Crash on Appleton Road This Morning

Charles Christianson, Manitowoc, received bruises and a possible neck dislocation in one accident while Norma Werner, 220 Water street, Menasha, suffered a back injury in a 3-car collision on Appleton road. Weather conditions were contributing factors in the accidents, according to the chief.

Christianson was injured when his car and one driven by Sylvester Paulowski, 788 Milwaukee street, Menasha, collided at Second and Milwaukee streets at 7 o'clock Sunday morning. Paulowski was on Milwaukee street and Christianson on Second street, according to the police report. The front end of the Christianson car and the left door running board and fender of the Paulowski car were damaged.

Five Neenah Events Postponed Because of Bad Weekend Weather

Neenah—At least five events scheduled Sunday in Neenah were postponed because of the rain.

The Neenah Merchants' Fox River Valley league booster game with Manitowoc at Washington park was washed out as was the first of a 3-game series between the Krueger Hardware, champions of the Senior Softball League, and the All Stars. That game was scheduled for Sunday morning at Washington park.

The Twin City Archery club had scheduled an archery trophy tournament yesterday afternoon at the Neenah High school athletic field but the all-day rain prevented that event from taking place.

The Knights of Pythias and Pythian Sisters were going to have a joint picnic yesterday at Riverside park but it was postponed, while the Neenah branch of the Aid Association for Lutherans picnic, scheduled at Doty park was held at Trinity Lutheran church.

First round matches in the women's championship golf tournament at Ridgeway Golf club, which were scheduled to be completed by Sunday, were postponed Saturday and yesterday because of the rain. The matches must be played by Saturday, Aug. 31.

Justice of the Peace Becomes a Defendant

Neenah—Now Justice of the Peace Gaylord C. Loehning knows how it feels to pay a fine.

The justice was assessed $175 when he pleaded guilty of over-time parking on N. Commercial street when he appeared at the police station last week. He waived court arraignment, Neenah police arrested the defendant.

Summer Jobs Keep Neenah Gridders in Shape for Fall

Neenah—Coach George Christoph's Neenah High school football players this summer have chosen a variety of jobs—from life-guarding at the Neenah pool to caddy-ing at Ridgeway Golf club, from peddling ice to army maneuvers at Camp McCoy, calculated to build muscles and earn a little money.

Those who didn't get jobs haven't been lazy around either, for throughout the summer they could be found swimming at the pool, playing baseball and tennis, fishing, camping and hiking as well as doing odd jobs, such as mowing lawns.

Coach Christoph will have 15 let-termen returning to the squad this fall, and practically all of them have found jobs which will keep them in top physical condition for the grid season.

Among the seniors who are working this summer are Roy Douglas, a center, who is employed at the Neenah Foundry company. Ray Smith, a fullback, has been doing considerable sailboating, while three gridders, Eugene Calloway, an end, Guard LaVerne Graham and Paul Butterfield, a tackle, are with Company I, 127th Infantry, Wisconsin National Guard, at the army maneuvers at Camp McCoy. Until the guard company left for camp this month, Calloway was a lifeguard at the swimming pool. Butterfield wasn't eligible to compete last fall, but this year he will be one of the candidates for a tackle berth.

Calvin Krenger, a guard, is caddy-ing at Ridgeway Golf club, and Robert Hackstock has been playing considerable baseball as well as doing odd jobs. Al Ackerman, a tackle, is delivering ice, while Buxton Kettering, half back, also has been doing odd jobs and taking part in summer athletic events.

A strong wind fanned the Stardust, skippered by Charles Zemlock, to a victory in the National class. The time was 53 minutes, 15 seconds.

Gerry Felton piloted Don't Ask to second place, two minutes behind the Stardust. Russell Johnson in Blitzkrieg was third and Rudy Lotz in Sunflower was fourth.

Driver Given Two $50 Fines

Bert Rummel Pleads Guilty of Being Drunk While Operating Car

Loehning and was fined $50 and costs under the city ordinance and $50 and costs under the state law, fines and fees totaling $108.75. His driver's license was suspended until he can prove financial responsibility to the secretary of state.

Neenah police arrested the defendant following an accident on County Highway A, south of Neenah, at 6:50 Sunday evening. Rummel's car collided with a machine driven by Donald Darrow, 217 W. Pacific street, Appleton.

Underground Line Too Costly, Power Firm Says at Conference

Menasha—Wisconsin-Michigan Power company officials conferred with members of the Menasha council Friday night regarding construction of a new high tension line in the city. The council asked that the power company put its lines underground after a wire broke and short circuited the Menasha system, sending 33,000 volts through the Menasha lines.

The power company representatives said that cost of such a system would be prohibitive and offered three alternatives. One would be to run a new power line along the railroad right of way north of Third street to the industrial district. The second would be to construct a new line north of Ninth street and then along the St. Paul railroad right of way to the industrial district.

The third suggestion would be to rebuild the present line with completely modern equipment with a view to minimizing radio interference. The power company will investigate and report on the costs of the various plans.

Prunuske reported that the job will take about two or three weeks, and then the crews will be shifted to Congress street where a big job will be tackled. More than 7,200 feet of curbs and gutters will be installed on Congress street from E. Doty avenue south to Cecil street.

The curb and gutter program was delayed because of necessary work on installing catch basins, storm sewers and other repair jobs.

Rain Slows Down, But Fails to Stop Tavern Loop Teams

Menasha—Rain and wet grounds Sunday slowed down the Tavern softball league but it failed to stop the league completely. The rain washed out the game between the champion Fish Fry team and All-Stars of the league and it also interfered with the parade scheduled to precede the ball game. It did not stop the players of the league, the team sponsors, and even the umpires from enjoying a banquet Sunday night at Falcons hall.

The rain did not completely stop the parade either. Sunday afternoon the Black Panthers, second-place team in the league, sent their float around town with a motorcycle escort. Syl Romnek was the black panther hiding among a profusion of young trees placed on the sides of the truck. Wally Zelinski was the hunter with an old musket and Mike Staniak was the animal's keeper. The panther had ample cause to howl.

Rain Cancels Falcon Game

Battle With Oshkosh For Second Round Honors Is Postponed

Menasha—Menasha Falcons were forced to postpone their battle with the Oshkosh 8500 Cabs, state amateur baseball champions, for the second half title of the Fox Valley league Sunday because of wet grounds.

The game probably will be played next Sunday or on Labor day. If the Falcons win against Oshkosh they will have to defeat the Appleton Gettelman Brew team before they can claim an undisputed second half title.

If weather conditions permit the games and the Falcons win, a series for the league championship will be played with the Oshkosh nine. The Cabs were awarded the first round title when the Kaukauna team failed to arrange a date to play off the tie.

The Falcons wanted to play Oshkosh Sunday as the Cabs had used Frank Klobier, ace of the mound staff, against the Waupun team Saturday. The Cabs would have used Cully Zinch yesterday and the Falcons think he would be much easier to hit than Klobier, who subdued the Falcons once before this year.

HOME PLANNING, FINANCING, BUILDING, FURNISHING

Belling Firm Offers Johns Manville Siding

Asbestos for Roofs, Siding Best for Homes

Roofing Company Will Make Drafty Houses Snug and Comfortable

The chill in the air last week was a gentle reminder that the football season is on its way and winter is just around the corner and also that now is a good time to contact Emil J. Belling, 513 N. Mason street, to ask him about prices for new roofing or siding before the snow flies.

There is still time to make cold drafty homes snug and comfortable for the cold winter ahead and the Belling Roofing company, which has been using Johns Manville materials for the last 25 years, is equipped and ready to offer this service.

If you haven't the cash for the job, that need not worry you for under the Re-Roof Now—Pay Later plan offered by the Belling firm, you have a year to pay off the cost of the job.

Mr. Belling especially would like to have home owners investigate the latest development for the outside walls of new or old homes, beautiful claspboards actually made of asbestos and cement. New homes can be safely covered and old homes can be transformed in appearance by the use of the new claspboards, a material that won't wear out and will not burn.

Belling says there is also a transformation in the yearly upkeep budget. Formerly the owner was faced with the need for painting his outside walls every few years just to protect them from the weather. The weather cannot harm the new siding material.

The new claspboard has a delicate wood graining that adds distinctiveness and charm to the home and can be applied over the old siding shingles or claspboard. The price for this type of siding is moderate, Belling emphasized.

The firm promises personal supervision for all jobs and workmen that know their business from years of specialized training and experience. A phone call will bring an estimate.

Swiss Plant Poppies

Bern—(AP)—Swiss farmers in the Broye valley have planted most of their fields with poppies.

Reason: Poppies long have been a source of oil, which is getting scarce in axis-encircled Switzerland.

BELLING GIVES HOME NEW CLOTHES—A "before and after" view of the Henry C. Houk home at 218 S. Oak street is proof that Emil J. Belling, 513 S. Mason street, knows what he's talking about when he says that Johns Manville roofing and siding materials will completely change the appearance of a house. The siding job was completed about two weeks ago and the inset picture was taken before the work started. (Post-Crescent Photos.)

Voters More Influential in Closely-Contested States

BY HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

Princeton, N. J. — In presidential elections the individual voter in a closely contested state may exert hundreds of times more influence on the makeup of the electoral college than a voter in a state where one candidate predominates strongly.

This is according to the arithmetic of Dr. John Q. Stewart, member of the faculty of Princeton university.

His computations show this inequality in past presidential elections, and indicate how large they may be in the coming election.

For example, he says, in 1936 New Hampshire's electoral vote of 4 would have been swung from Roosevelt if only 1,910 voters had been persuaded to change to Landon. Accordingly 4 electoral votes were effectively controlled at the rate of 478 votes per electoral vote.

Therefore, it is fair to assert, Dr. Stewart says, that a Roosevelt voter in New Hampshire exerted about 18 times greater influence on the composition of the electoral college than a Roosevelt voter in Mississippi.

In the famous contest of 1884 a change to Blaine of 575 Cleveland votes in New York would have put the state's 36 electors in the Blaine column, and Blaine in the White House.

This case was at the rate of 16 votes per elector of the winning side.

From results of a recent sample nationwide poll Dr. Stewart estimates that this fall in Wyoming a Willkie voter stands to exert 38 times more electoral influence than the individual Roosevelt voter in Texas. In some other states as estimated by Dr. Stewart, on the basis of the straw poll, are Illinois where 4,000 will control the electoral vote; Indiana 6,000 and Iowa 7,000.

Schlafer's Has Pilot Exhaust Fans for Homes

Kitchen Ventilator Expels Odors, Fumes; Runs Automatically

Does your home smell of cooked food after meals are prepared? Do steam and vapor from cooking food make shining kitchen walls dirty?

If this is true in your home, Schlafer's has just what is needed to eliminate these troubles. . . a Pilot automatic kitchen ventilator.

The Pilot exhaust fan is needed in every kitchen and all new home builders should install one to expell kitchen odors. Schlafer's say.

A Pilot is the sign of a modern kitchen. It expells all odors and prevents them from spreading to other rooms. It operates automatically, is easy to clean and can be installed anywhere.

Leading architects, builders, and electrical contractors were consulted in the design and ideal construction of the Pilot. Building codes in many cities compel all built-in ventilators to be approved by the National board of fire underwriters and the Pilot is.

The Pilot is housed in an all metal box with weather-proofed door and fits all thicknesses of walls. Any size is available but the 10-inch size is the most popular, the firm says.

The blades of the fan are aerodynamic type to insure greater movement of air and the outside door with protective shield, seats perfectly into felt packing which insures against dust, water or cold entering the home.

Schlafer's carries the Pilot in its regular stock. The 8-inch size sells for $19.95 while the 10-inch size is $22.95. The installation is complete with metal box and automatic switch.

Olga Coal Is Favorite Fuel

Home Owners Enjoy Its Cleanliness and Heating Efficiency

With coal prices due for a raise early next month, the Haug Fuel and Supply company today advised residents of Appleton and vicinity to stock up now and combine early preparation for cold weather with real savings in fuel costs.

Olga coal, handled by the Haug company, which has its headquarters at 719 W. College avenue, is the ideal, all-around fuel for families.

It allows home owners to decorate with light-colored wallpaper and woodwork. Because it is a dustless, smokeless coal, it is a favorite with

Sindahl Says 2-Coat System Is Real Saving

Elliott Method Is Economical, Better Than Old-Fashioned Way

The Elliott 2-coat system of painting is brought to Appleton by the A. C. Sindahl Paint company, 519 W. Wisconsin avenue, as the most important and outstanding achievement in the history of the industry. Elliott's exterior first coat and primer saves one coat of paint, saves one-third of the labor expense and forms the base for an enduring and attractive paint coat. Rigid and lengthy weather exposure tests have conclusively proved these points.

The Elliott 2-coat system eliminates the need of a third coat of paint on the great majority of both old and new paint jobs. Minute surveys and comparisons have shown that this system provides more protection, solid covering and beauty for the average surface than an ordinarily applied 3-coat job of lead and oil, or standard brand paint. The method checks peeling, blistering, dusting off and general disintegration of the paint film.

Secret of Success

The secret of success of the Elliott system is in perfectly controlled penetration and sure adhesion to the surface. Instead of the liquids entirely penetrating the surface and leaving the dry pigment on the surface, as in the case of ordinary primers, exterior first coat and primer penetrates new or old wood and previously painted surfaces just enough to secure firm anchorage. It hides all fine cracks and crevices and stops all suction, thus forming a perfect foundation for the finishing coat.

A perfectly functioning first coat and primer is just as essential to the building of a lasting paint structure as a good solid foundation is to a house. Made for more than 40 years, there's an Elliott paint product for every surface protecting and beautifying need and there is none better at any price.

housewives who appreciate its cleanliness.

Home owners like Olga coal because it will not deposit soot or grease on windows or furnishings. And furthermore, it has a high heat value, making it possible to keep rooms at the same temperature throughout the winter.

To top off all its qualities, Olga coal is low in cost so the family budget is kept balanced. Olga measures up to all the requirements of superior fuel—and more besides.

Dancisak Will be 'Man of the Hour'

Appleton Manager To be Honored at 4th Booster Night

THE PROGRAM
Aug. 27—Paper Workers night, Appleton versus Fond du Lac.
Aug. 28—Track and Field night, Appleton versus Fond du Lac.
Aug. 29—Dairy night, Appleton versus Sheboygan.
Aug. 30—Dancisak night, Appleton versus Sheboygan.

Eddie Dancisak, manager of the Appleton Papermakers, will be in the limelight Friday night, Aug. 30, when the last of four big booster games will be sponsored by Appleton business men. The four special nights are being staged to show Appleton's appreciation of daily baseball's contribution to the community and provide funds to finance spring training next year. Sheboygan will be the Wisconsin State league foe.

A record crowd is expected to turn out on Dancisak night to honor the popular Papermaker manager. He will be showered by gifts which are to be deposited at Fond Sport shop this week. A portion of the gate receipts will be set aside to throw a party for the players and provide a bonus if they pull out of the cellar spot.

Prizes valued at more than $300 will be distributed to lucky ticket-holders on Dancisak night. Stubs carrying chances on the prizes will be given at the gate with all admissions, including season tickets, on each of the four "Appreciation" nights. Advance tickets are being sold at Fond Sport Shop and Dick Oudenhoven's tavern.

Paper Workers Night
Leading off the elaborate program will be Paper Workers night, Tuesday, Aug. 27. All employees of Fox River valley mills have been invited to turn out for an evening of fun and the general public, of course, will be on hand to view the merriment.

Special tickets are being distributed to the mills and these will be held holders to the park at 5:30 tomorrow afternoon for free beer and lunch, both being served until 7 o'clock. Hopfensperger Bros. Inc., operator of five retail meat markets, is supplying hot dogs. Elm Tree Bakery will provide buns and doughnuts and the Electric City Brewing company of Kaukauna is putting up the beer. The free refreshments, which will be served by members of Appleton service clubs, will be cut off at 7 o'clock and the general public admitted to witness a parade of all the papermakers on the diamond. Several bands have been enlisted for the occasion and banners identifying the various units will add color to the event.

Novelty contests will feature Track and Field night, Wednesday, and Dairy night, Thursday. Present bleachers will be moved to the outfield and will remain as 25-cent seats. Additional bleachers, seating about 1,500, will be set up along the infield foul lines to give the park a total capacity of about 3,500, plenty of room for everybody who wants to take in the special activities and boost the Appleton baseball team.

Two Rivers — Two Rivers got three of its four hits off Larry Roock in the first inning to beat a luckless Seymour team, 2-1, in a Northern State league game Saturday. It was Seymour's second defeat in the season's second half and gives Manitowoc a chance at first place honors.

Two Rivers scored both runs in the first inning. With two out, Wulf singled. Smogleski followed with another. Schultz drew a base on balls. Meyer batted a single through the box, scoring two runs. After this uprising Roock allowed the Two Rivers clan to put only one more man on base, Herman singling in the fourth.

Seymour got its run in the second. Zuidmuller was struck by a pitched ball, went to third on Clusman's hit and scored on a hit by Nicodem. Seymour couldn't bring in any more scores, despite a number of opportunities.

Seymour will meet Manitowoc in an important game next Sunday. Seymour will celebrate the engagement by making it the annual booster game.

LaCrosse trimmed Sheboygan, 2 to 0, in the only game played Sunday in the league.

Appleton Pin Association to Meet Nov. 24

Raises Sanction Fee To $1.50; Leagues to Name Representatives

With only passable attendance, preliminary plans for the 1940-41 season were drawn by members of the Appleton Bowling association at a meeting Sunday morning at the Elks club. Another meeting will be held at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon, Nov. 24, at which every league is to have an elected representative to act on several important matters. He will have as many votes as there are teams in his circuit.

The person named by each league as its representative will serve on the board of directors of the association and as a contract man between the association and the league.

The group yesterday voted to raise the A. B. C. sanction fee from $1 to $1.50, checks to be made payable to the Appleton Bowling association. Of this amount, $1 will go to the A. B. C. and 50 cents will be retained by the local association. It will be decided at the November meeting whether the 50 cents will be paid to the association secretary-treasurer or put into the association treasury and a flat salary adopted. Last year the secretary-treasurer was paid from city tournament funds.

To Invite Outside Loops
Leagues from Kimberly, Little Chute, Freedom and other communities in this vicinity will be invited to join the local association provided the by-laws of the association permit. A committee of three was appointed to study the constitution and by-laws of the association and draw a new set of governing rules to conform with the A. B. C. and fit local conditions. Lou Powers, Aaron Gehring and Robert Schmidt are on the committee.

Two meetings of the association will be held every year, one in November and the other the second Sunday after the close of the annual city tournament.

A financial report which showed receipts of $1,662.50 and expenditures of $1,653.87 with a balance of $8.63 was presented by Powers, secretary-treasurer, and approved. The association's only income was the city tournament. Of the expenses, $481 went to the Elks club for bowling, $75 to Powers for services, $40 to Gehring for services and the balance for printing, supplies and incidentals. A total of $950 was given in prize money.

Oshkosh Pro Sets Course Record of 64 at New London

New London—Henry Dettlaff, golf pro at the Oshkosh Municipal course, tested Springvale course here Friday afternoon and set a course record for 18 holes while tying Bud Wendland's recent 9-hole record of 32. Dettlaff shot two rounds of 32 each for a 64 total. No records have been kept of former 18-hole marks. Playing with him were Joseph Kukulinski and Arthur Stevens, Oshkosh, and Bud Wendland. The two Oshkosh men shot 74 and 75, respectively.

Next Sunday afternoon the New London Golf club will entertain the Clintonville club in a return match of a home and home series at Springvale course here. About a dozen participants on each team.

The men's regular Thursday afternoon golf tournament will be held as usual this week.

Chiefs Victors, 29-0, but Their War Whoops Can't Scare the Dutchmen

WEENIE WILSON IS ON THE WAY—A speedy little halfback who was with the Packers for a time last season, Weenie Wilson, was the offensive star of the game at Weyauwega yesterday between the Milwaukee Chiefs and the Little Chute Flying Dutchmen. Here's a shot of Wilson swinging around right end for his team's first touchdown. The Chiefs won, 29-0. (Post-Crescent Photo.)

Weenie Wilson Scores Twice for Milwaukee, Once on a 50-Yard Run

Weyauwega — The Flying Dutchmen of Little Chute, with only three nights of training behind them, engaged in their first scrimmage of the season yesterday in a full-length game against the Milwaukee Chiefs of the American Professional Football league and they were the toast of the crowd of 2,000 before the day was over.

The Dutchmen lost, 29-0. Their fumbles were recovered, one punt was blocked, and several passes intercepted, but it was only in this manner that the Chiefs scored. Not once did the Milwaukee club put on a sustained drive for a touchdown. Whenever it appeared the Chiefs were on the war path, the Dutchmen just grinned a little wider and dug a little deeper in the sandy field at the fair grounds. And pretty soon the Dutchmen would have the ball again.

The Dutchmen deserve all the credit in the world, not because they were valorous in facing a foe of far greater strength (they weren't in the least afraid of anyone the Chiefs could field) but because they came over to Weyauwega with only 17 men and turned in a rough and tough game. And it must be put down that the crowd was disappointed in the showing of the Chiefs but not any more than Coach Tiny Cahoon probably was. The Milwaukee club needs plenty of hard work and 'tis rumored the boys are going to get it—starting today.

The Chiefs were leading 22-0 going into the last minute of the game. They had scored all those points in the first half and in the second half the tiring Dutchmen had managed to fend off every threat. Then Weenie Wilson, fresh in the game, hauled down a Little Chute pass on the 50 yard line and blazed down the field, finally being bounced out of bounds on the 1-foot line. The Dutchmen held for one play, but on the next Wilson, who played for awhile with the Packers last year, racked around right end for the marker and Larson kicked goal.

That was hard to take, for before the Chiefs started the last play, only three seconds remained in the game.

It should be pointed out that the field was about as fast as a vegetable garden, what with water and loose sand, and this had a lot to do with slowing down the Chiefs' speedy backs. But backfield formations didn't click well on numerous plays and the Dutchmen's line stormed through right and left.

Hank Van Lankvelt, for example, played on even terms with any center the Chiefs could muster and he slipped through several times to flop the ball carrier for losses. Sharp and Marks at tackles and Captain Al Booz at fullback were standouts all afternoon.

The Chiefs' passing attack was hampered, of course, by the conditions of the field, but the crowd enjoyed several good catches.

Bill Hickey, former St. Norbert college halfback, was as consistent

SHOOTING for SPORT

By PHIL R. MILLER
National Shooting Ace

CHOICE OF GUN (Second In A Series)

In shooting, as in any other sport, it is essential that the participant's implement be of the best and that it be fitted to the person using it. The marksman should be as exacting in his choice of a gun as is the golfer in his choice of clubs. The most important item in choosing a gun is correct fitting and where possible your gun should be fitted to you by an experienced marksman, not by an inexperienced sales clerk. Once you've decided on a gun, use it at all times. Constant use of one gun will make it feel almost a part of you, as easy to point as your finger. Trap guns and skeet guns differ in that the latter throw a pattern of shot almost 50 per cent wider. The full choke or trap gun shoots about 75 per cent of its load into a 30-inch circle at 40 yards. The gun with special skeet boring shoots 55 per cent of its load into the same target at the same distance. Trap shooters, since their shot pattern is small and because they stand farther from the trap, insist that that sport is more difficult than skeet shooting. Skeet enthusiasts have their own arguments. I'm neutral on the question.

All-Stars Will Work On Anti-Dr Defense
Chicago — (AP) — The College All-Stars will devote their remaining practice sessions to devising a way to battle up the dreaded aerial attack of the Green Bay Packers—something few pro rivals of the Packers have been able to do in recent years.

The campus heroes of 1939 and the pro champions clash Thursday night in a charity football game in Soldier field. The All-Stars will be led by Bulky Harry Smith, All-America guard of Southern California, who was elected captain of the squad yesterday.

Head Coach Eddie Anderson said two drills were on tap for today and tomorrow, all of which would be devoted to defensive work designed to solve the Packer offensive.

Pro Golfers in Quest for Title

P. G. A. Championships Open; Snead, Picard, Hogan, Wood Favored

Hershey, Pa. — (AP) — The long hitters stepped up and took a bow today as the professional golf brigade set out in quest of the P. G. A. championship, a seven-day combination of medal and match play conceded to be the toughest tournament grind in the game.

Here on a 7,000-yard layout as long as any on which the P. G. A. ever was contested, the railbirds already have picked out as possible winners a handful of the lads who hit a shot practically out of sight.

As a field of 125, largest in the history of the tournament, teed off for the qualifying rounds, an overnight rain added even greater length to the cloverly Hershey country club course.

On the strength of their general all-around ability to belt the ball far and away, Slammin' Sam Snead, defending champion Henry Picard, a little Ben Hogan and luckless Craig Wood led off the firing as prime favorites.

Eighteen holes today and another 18 tomorrow reduce the field to the low 63, plus Picard who is exempt from qualifying.

Flying Dutchmen Will Organize for 1940 Grid Season

Little Chute—A meeting of the local Flying Dutchmen football team will be held at the village hall tonight to plan for the season.

A manager will be elected and a coach appointed to take charge of the squad. A bid has been received from Frank Bonk, temporary secretary of a move to organize a football league composed of Two Rivers, Manitowoc, Sheboygan, Appleton, Fond du Lac and Little Chute, for a home and home series, with a league setup such as the Fox River Valley baseball league operates on. A franchise will have to be posted after the second league game. The setup will give teams entered five home games and five away and will do away with individual game advertising with a season's schedule printed on one poster. It also eliminates individual guarantees to teams for appearances and has a check on teams who fail to appear as a forfeit of franchise money will be claimed according to league by-laws.

All former players from surrounding cities who performed for the Flying Dutchmen have been urged to attend the meeting tonight.

Hudson's Big Hop Fails to Halt Kid Who Came Up From Class D

Washington — (AP) — Baseball broad-jumping honors this year go to Sidney Charles Hudson, tall and angular right-hander, who made the long leap from the Florida State league to the American league in one swift move.

No other 1940 rookie hurdled as many league classifications into the majors as did Hudson, for the Florida loop is one of baseball's bushiest bush leagues. Most players take four or five years to cover as much ground.

Hudson was the first freshman to notch 10 triumphs and his string of victories for Washington also shows a pair of one-hit masterpieces. Earlier in the year Hudson had a no-hitter against the Browns until Rip Radcliff doubled in the ninth.

A few days ago he went seven innings against the Athletics before Sam Chapman nicked him for a single.

Won 24 In 1939
Sid is 6 feet 4, weighs 180 and is 22 years old. He won 24 and lost four games in 1939. That's some twirling in any company. Two of his defeats weren't his fault, for one game was lost on an error and another when his team failed to tally while the opposition gained a lone counter.

Furthermore, he started 29 games and finished all but one. And when he wasn't pitching he was playing another spot. He was in every game, playing first base, third base or the outfield. Since the Florida State is one of baseball's kindergartens, few big league scouts bother to look over the unseasoned talent. That's why Washington happened to get Hudson.

Griffith Takes A Chance
The Senators train in Orlando, which is near Sanford where Hudson played. Canny Clark Griffith, in sore need of pitching aid, heard of him and was willing to take a chance on the youngster.

SID HUDSON: Class D To Majors In One Jump

Sid was impressive in spring drills but still few thought he could make the big leap to the majors.

Hudson lost all but two of his first 11 starts but Manager Bucky Harris had confidence in him and kept starting him in his regular turn.

"His control was too good," Harris explained, "He tried to make every pitch a strike."

Harris figured that any pitcher who could continually pour 'em down the center of the plate could also cut the corners and so told Hudson. It took Sid some time, but he's getting the corners now and winning games.

"Sid is the best I've seen since Schoolboy Rowe came up to Detroit. He has lots of stuff, good control and is a fine fielding pitcher," Harris says.

BOBBY RIGGS

Riggs Rules the Roost Again

New York—It's Riggs against the field again for the national singles tennis championship at Forest Hills—which means, in 1940 grass court parlance, it's Riggs again for the title. The 1940 field has been able to do little very convincing about Bobby's domination of the tennis ranks. True, he has been beaten. Frank Kovacs took him once, Don McNeill trounced him in the clay courts championships. Both have given him extremely uncomfortable hours in lead-up tournaments. But the slew-footed champ is a chips-down player and with his national title on the block it's hard to see anyone who can take him. Don McNeill, say the experts, has the best chance. Serious, hard-working and a fiery competitor, he has a well-rounded game. At Rye he went into the third set against Riggs tied at one-all, launched an attack that had Bobby gasping. The game score was five-love when Riggs, apparently deciding the set was gone anyhow, suddenly threw caution out the window and blasted away—and his shots began to fall. He took seven straight games, ran out the next set for the match. Smart, a wizard at sensing turning points and how to take advantage of them, Bobby made a similar comeback to down Kovacs, who had driven to match point several times. Kovacs, who concentrates more on entertaining the gallery than on his tennis, is conceded a chance if he is at his best. Welby Van Horn, young Californian, whose series of sensational upsets carried him into the finals in 1939, has been disappointing but must be mentioned on last year's performance alone. Frankie Parker, ranked No. 2, could come up on a good day and cause the champion trouble.

Red Birds are Flying High

Columbus Not Only Wins Twin Bill, but Records 2 Shutouts

Milwaukee—If the Columbus Red Birds can stick to their present form for the remaining 25 scheduled games, Kansas City will have to win about 100 games to retain its first place honors. In the past month the Birds have won 26 games and lost 5.

Minneapolis made a bid for second place again Sunday with a double victory, but Columbus not only won its twin bill, but captured both decisions by shutouts. The Millers are a half game behind Columbus in third place.

Ernie White set St. Paul down with three hits in the opener for a 3-0 triumph and Murray Dickson gave the Saints only five in taking the nightcap by the same score. The decision was White's ninth and Dickson's 12th.

The Millers banded out six homers, three by Ab Wright, to account for 10 runs in their 11 to 5 first game victory over Toledo. Wright drove in six runs. Phil Weintraub's single with the bases loaded in the first inning won the aftermath, 2 to 1, for the Millers.

The double victories enabled Columbus and Minneapolis to take a game away from Kansas City, which split two with Louisville. Johnny Lindell pitched the Blues to a 3 to 2 triumph in the inaugural, yielding four hits for his 16th decision. Fred Sington's two home runs gave the Colonels a 7-3 margin in the second game.

Indianapolis and Milwaukee were rained out.

Scalzo and Perrin To Fight Tonight

New Orleans—If Jimmy Perrin of New Orleans, who has beaten the best of the featherweights in the last two years, meets Pete Scalzo of New York, the National Boxing association champion, in a 10-round overweight match here tonight.

Scalzo's title will not be at stake. Betting odds favored Scalzo 8 to 5.

The fighters have agreed to weigh over 126 pounds and under 128. Neither will use bandage or tape with the regulation six-ounce glove. A crowd of 15,000 is expected.

Each has beaten Joey Aronbald, former 126-pound king. Frankie Coelli, Al Reid and other leading featherweights.

Eau Claire Nearly Gets Out of Cellar

Minneapolis—If the Eau Claire Bears almost climbed out of the cellar of the Northern league today by taking a double header from the Crookston Pirates winning the first 2-0 and the seven innings record 9-3.

The outcome left the Bears only a few percentage points behind the Fargo-Moorhead Twins who defeated Duluth's Dukes 9-8 in the first game and got a 2-2 tie in the second which was called after seven innings.

Wausau divided a double bill with Winnipeg, dropping the first, 7-5, but taking the second, 4-0 on Hush Orphan's four-hit hurling, to go into a tie with Duluth for fourth place. It was Orphan's 18th victory of the season.

Grand Forks, the league leaders, also split a double bill, losing the first to Superior, 6-1, but taking the second, 1-0, as Somenzi outpitched Charley, allowing but three hits, one less than his teammates got.

2 Games Will Be Played in Kimberly Loop

Twin Bill Includes All of Four Teams in Twilight League

Kimberly—A doubleheader will be featured in the Twilight softball league at the ball park tonight which will bring all teams in the league. The first game will start at 7:30 with Gossens playing Gerondales, followed by a battle between De Leeuws and Van Boogaards.

De Leeuws and Van Boogaards are virtually tied for first place in the second round. De Leeuws have four wins and one loss while Van Boogaards have three wins and one loss. In the other game Gossens who won the first half but are not doing so good in the second round, meet Gerondales who have had only fair success this year. Being a young team, much will be expected of them next year.

Home runs scored by players are as follows: Tony Oudenhoven, 3; E. Wildenberg, 2; while J. Stein, O. Gossens, W. Wildenberg, P. Van Dyke, E. Vander Velden, R. Menen, and M. De Groot, each scored one. Triples, Paul Van Dyke, 2; Q. Williams, 2; and sixteen other players tied with one apiece.

Doubles, R. Vander Velden, 7; P. Van Dyke, and William Sarison, 6 apiece; N. Gossens, 4; J. Lom, M. De Groot, T. Oudenhoven, and E. Van den Boogaard, 3 apiece. There are eight players tied with two doubles and twenty players tied with one each.

Replacement of 8 Veterans Is Problem Facing Giants

Pearl River, N. Y.—If stout Steve Owen, coach of the New York football Giants, could put 22 men on the field at once, it would help solve a lot of his worries.

The Giants, after losing the national title to the Green Bay Packers last year, said goodbye to eight veterans in their places—or fighting for them—are so many promising rookies that Owen's big problem is one of elimination.

The Giants' backfield was a headache much of last year—and so that's where most of the replacements are to be found.

Of course, Tuffy Leemans is back and so are Hank Soar and Feet Barnum. Nella Palaschi, Ward Cuff—but pressing them are George Mena, Carnegie Teel's great back, Eddie Miller, the speed merchant from New Mexico State; Hoes Nielsen 21-pound Arizona line buster; Kay Kakin, the Arkansas passer; Grey Lansdel and Dom Principe, two of the college ranks' brightest backs last year.

That ought to give stout Steve a nucleus of one of the finest backfields the Giants ever boasted.

The line problem is not without its bright aspects, too. Heading the parade as in the past nine years is Mel Hein, the league's greatest center.

Flanking Hein are the complete lines of veterans—and enough youngsters who'd like to be playing

The shooting grounds law would tax the hunter, in addition to what he now pays for the privilege of taking game, and the extra money thus raised would be used to lease or purchase land for public hunting. There was apparently considerable opposition to the idea, for the bill failed to pass when introduced into the state legislature.

From what we hear, the bill will be brought up again at the next session, and everything points to locked horns and plenty of kicked up so.

In addition to taking the last two 15-mile heats in the sweepstakes yesterday, after finishing second in the first heat Saturday, Tops also won the 225-cubic inch glass title the same way.

The DOG OWNER and HIS DOG

BY ALLAN KERR
If at first glance this offering takes on the appearance of a woods and streams department, don't let it step you. It really is about dogs, and quite naturally at this time of year, sporting dogs. And what is more, it concerns a subject that is timely and of great importance to the dog owning sportsman.

As most scatter-gun enthusiasts know, the problem of where to legally hunt birds, especially state planted pheasants, is becoming acutely acute. As these sportsmen are also aware, the situation has brought about some attempted remedies. Most widely publicized of these is the proposed public shooting grounds legislation. Then there is the several years old, sportsmen's club land leasing plan which is now spreading into a number of Wisconsin counties.

The shooting grounds law would tax the hunter, in addition to what he now pays for the privilege of taking game, and the extra money thus raised would be used to lease or purchase land for public hunting. There was apparently considerable opposition to the idea, for the bill failed to pass when introduced into the state legislature.

Pros to Make Bow Labor Day At Milwaukee

Green Bay Packers Will Square Off With Redskin Eleven

Green Bay—The professional football season will make its 1940 bow in Milwaukee Sept. 2, Labor day afternoon, when the Green Bay Packers, National champions, lock horns with the Washington Redskins, 1939 runners-up in the Eastern division, at 2 p. m.

The State fair park management is making arrangements to handle a capacity throng. The Packers have always "packed" 'em at the games in the Badger metropolis and this year's inaugural classic, is such a natural that fans for miles around will drive in to see the gridiron gladiators perform.

Coach E. L. Lambeau's squad is going through a terrific practice season to be in tiptop form for Washington. There is little love lost between the teams and it will be a ding dong battle all the way.

Two Great Passers
Two of the greatest passers in postgraduate football, Arnie Herber and Sammy Baugh, will be seen in action. Stories from Spokane where the Redskins are training have it that Baugh is flashing like the Sammys of old when he made aerial records on the professional gridiron. This is Arnie Herber's tenth season with the Packers but his long career hasn't showed up his pitching arm and he can still toss them with deadly accuracy.

Curly Lambeau and Red Flaherty, the Washington pilot, have been foes in a football way for many years. The Redskins' mentor was a great end with the New York Giants before he stepped into a coach's role so he knows the Packers' style of play from both sides of the fence.

Strong Pass Defense
It is said that Flaherty has built up a defense which is going to raise havoc with the Packer overhead attack. The Redskins' coach has been working with his club overtime on the method which he hopes to stop Don Hutson and the other Green Bay receivers. Scouts from the other National league clubs will be on hand in Milwaukee to see Flaherty's attempt to stop the Bays' blitzkrieg.

Hutson played his college football at Alabama and in the Washington game he will bump up against a pair of rookie wingmen, Gene Blackwell and Sandy Sanford, both of whom played with the Crimson tide last year and what's more they are both wingmen like Green Bay's famous Don.

Boots kicked over the goal line. After his team failed to gain sufficient yardage, Becker got off a beautiful kick from his own 25 to the Dutchmen's 10. The Little Chute backfield couldn't hang onto the ball and Duffett was tackled behind his goal line for a safety and two more points.

Dutchmen Fight
The stubborn Dutchmen blocked off several threats by the Chiefs in the second half, playing the Milwaukee club on equal terms at times. The pro team recovered a fumble on the Dutchmen's 10-yard line, early in the third quarter. Splendid defensive work by Sharp and Baeton banished the danger of scoring, the Chiefs winding up by pitching a fourth-down pass into the end zone. The Chiefs came right back, but lost the ball again when Murray, former Portland end, dropped a pass on the goal line. A few moments later, De Bruin snared a Chief pass to stop another drive.

The Chiefs appeared to be on their way in the fourth quarter after Carson's 34-yard run to the Dutchmen's 33. The Dutchmen were penalized for being offside, but then threw Carson for a loss. Strong, Michigan fullback, slipped to the 16-yard line. The Chiefs fourth-down pass was knocked down by Lamers in the end zone. After Cole picked off a Little Chute pass, the Chiefs were down there again, but a pass by Novakowski was knocked down and Wilson was stopped for no gain, the Dutchmen taking the ball. It was then that Wilson intercepted a pass and got loose for 50 yards.

Among the speakers during the intermission were George Dobbins of Weyauwega; George M. Harris, Milwaukee, president of the Chiefs; Mayor Carl Zeidler of Milwaukee; and Reuben W. Peterson, candidate for the Republican nomination for the United States senate.

The lineups follows:
Chiefs: Pos. Little Chute, Murray, F. E. Wyngaard, Hoel, LG Sharp, Aikin, LT De Bruin, Humphrey, C Van Lankvelt, Larson, RG Green, Eckl, RT Tracy, Barnes, RE Baeton, Cole, QB Lamers, Hickey, RB Ozzie, Wilson, LT Duffett, Doering, FB Boos.

Substitutions—Chiefs, backfield, Maltch, Strong, Novakowski, Myre, Carson, Becker, Gould, Linemen, Shipila, West, Bohan, Bohman, Wile, Dussault, Perrino, Ohlgren, Berwanger.

Flying Dutchmen—backfield, Red Boots, Hartjes, Helf; linemen, Eiting, Jansen, Marks.

Games Rained Out in County, Valley Loops
Sunday's rain put all teams in both the Outagamie County league and Fox Valley league on the inactive list for the afternoon. Managers will hold meetings to determine new dates for the games.

in his ball carrying as any back on his club. Howard Carson, former Illinois fullback, jammed through for several good gains, one a canter of about 34 yards. Bob Hoel, big Minnesota tackle, kept busy in there and Akin and Larson appear to have the experience and fight to make the guard position strong.

Obbie Novakowski, former Lawrence great, had tough luck in his appearance at the halfback post. His line didn't hold out the enemy when he went back to pass, Van Lankvelt trapping him once, and the heavy footing hindered Obbie on punt returns.

A blocked kick gave the Chiefs an opening within the first few moments. Captain Al Boots' kick was knocked down on the 11-yard line, the Chiefs recovering. Weenie Wilson flashed around end and over the goal on the first play, but the Chiefs were penalized for holding. Doering banged through for nine.

On a reverse, Wilson dropped the ball, scooped it up again and fled about 17 yards for his team's first six points. Humphrey, former Purdue center and acting captain, booted the point.

Score Again
It was only a short time later that the Chiefs scored again and it began to look as though the Dutchmen were in for a thorough trouncing. Hickey intercepted a Little Chute pass and was downed on the Dutchmen's 26.

Barnes, onetime Baylor end, picked off Doering's pass and was flopped on the nine-yard line. After starters by Doering and Wilson, the former Bear fullback finally carried over the last few yards.

Humphrey again kicked the point, making the count 14-0.

In the second quarter, Little John Maltch, formerly of Marquette, got off a nice pass to Bowman from midfield. Bowman was dropped on the 29. Little Chute was charged with defensive holding, backing the Dutchmen up to their own 14 yard stripe. On the next play, Maltch ran wide to the right to score. It was through wide sweeping end runs, with fresh ball carriers, and not through the line that the Chiefs did most of their damage.

Shopla missed the kick and the Chiefs were out in front, 20-0.

It was here that the Dutchmen showed they could play some football. After the kick-off, the Chiefs started from their own 28. Three successive 5-yard penalties were assessed against the Chiefs and Becker, former Stevens Point star, was tossed for a loss as he tried to pass. The Dutchmen finally took over on the Chiefs' 46 and on the first play Boots tossed a pass to Eiting for a 9-yard gain. Boots powered through for five yards, but the Dutchmen had to quit their offensive and punt.

Boots kicked over the goal line. After his team failed to gain sufficient yardage, Becker got off a beautiful kick from his own 25 to the Dutchmen's 10. The Little Chute backfield couldn't hang onto the ball and Duffett was tackled behind his goal line for a safety and two more points.

Motorcyclists Smash Marks, Woman Killed During Races

Springfield, Ill.—If the record books were given a thorough overhauling at the American Motorcycle association's racing meet yesterday.

New flat dirt track records were established in the 25, 10, eight, five and one mile runs—the only events in which competition was held.

Mel Rhodes of Harrisburg, Pa., won the 25-mile feature race in 18 minutes, 37.62 seconds breaking the former record of 19:02.13 set here by Woodie Castonguay of Bridgeport, Conn., in 1937.

Bill Matthews of Hamilton, Ont., Canadian champ, won the 10 mile event in 7 minutes, 29.04 seconds to beat his own record of 7:50.02 made a week ago at Milwaukee, Wis.

Art Hafer of Kalamazoo, Mich., negotiated the eight mile run in 6:18.30, shaving eight-hundredths of a second from the previous record held by Ben Campanale of Providence, R. I.

Campanale went once around the one mile track in 43.27 seconds in a qualifying run to break a 3-year old record of 44.43.

A woman spectator was killed and a man spectator and two drivers were injured in two accidents which marred the program. Coroner W. L. Dragoo said Mrs. Helen Eckhoff of Nokomis, Ill., was struck in the head and killed by a motorcycle pilot during the preliminary trials.

Lawrence Beattie, 26, of Springfield, suffered a skull fracture when he was struck by a machine ridden by Fred Sadowski of Milwaukee which somersaulted into a fence. Sadowski suffered a broken leg.

Denning Pushing Phil Rizzuto for Lead in Batting
Chicago—Now that virtually all other top notch clubbers in the American association have had their fling at trying to dislodge pace setter Phil Rizzuto, it may be up to big Otto Denning to turn the trick.

Should that occur, it would bring a double measure of satisfaction to the Minneapolis catcher. It was Rizzuto, Kansas City's crack short

Gatherings of Swallows are Familiar Sights in August

BY CLARA HUSSONG

Although August is a quiet month in the bird world because most species are molting at this time, the gathering of the swallows and the flocking of redwings, cowbirds, grackles and others of the blackbird tribe are sights that most of us can observe every day.

To many people the sight of tier upon tier of swallows perched on telephone or electric power wires or the flocking and wandering of the blackbird tribe means just one thing: the early migration of these species. This, however, is not the case. Some swallows and martins are still nesting and they will remain with us until September. Grackles and redwings wander about in great bands all through August, September and until late October.

As early as July the tree swallows begin to line up on the wires by the thousands. If you look closely at a flock you will see that most of them are immature birds, this season's first brood. As the summer advances they are joined by older birds who have finished raising their young and their numbers are enlarged still more by migrants from the north. It appears that migrants from the north pass through first and are followed by our resident swallows.

Blackbirds in Flocks

Tree swallows are noticed more often than the rest of the swallows in this gathering and perching, but sometimes you will see with them or in separate flocks martins, barn, bank, rough-winged and cliff swallows. All the members of the family are sociable birds and this seems to be a time of rest and play for the old folks and of trial flights for the young birds.

Almost any evening if you look up into the sky you may see huge flocks of blackbirds flying over, or if you drive out into the country you will see them come down like great black clouds, descending into cat-tail marshes or perching thickly on tall trees of low meadows or edges of swamps. Redwings, cowbirds, starlings, grackles and migrating Brewster's and rusty blackbirds have this habit of wandering about in great hordes.

For them, too, parental duties are over and they spend the late summer and autumn days in searching for food. Often they have a favorite feeding place such as a grain field, and a resting place several miles away, but night and morning you may see them cross from one point to another, usually following the same route day after day.

Moved North To Nest

Several years ago, in September, a DePere resident called me and told me of watching night after night great parades of blackbirds crossing over a certain spot at a given hour at twilight. They traveled north with a slight westward slant. I had watched similar flocks crossing over in the same direction just a few minutes later.

One evening we followed this bird parade and found this bird parade came to rest in the marshes and swamps near the mouth of the Fox river. Trees, which were beginning to lose their leaves, became black and heavy with the birds. Evidently they spent the days feeding in old grain fields south of DePere but chose to spend the nights farther north.

One of the blackbird tribe, the bobolink, has been gone for several weeks. Early in August the males change their black, white and yellow coats for the brindle-gray-brown such as their mates wear. After this they stop singing their jingling music and take their departure silently, with only a few scattered "blinks" and "spinks" to give away their identity. I saw my last bobolink this year on Aug. 12.

Goldfinches always travel in flocks too, but you will find them in bands at all seasons of the year. Unlike most of our song birds they are still in good voice and you may hear their canary-calls as they soar in their billowy flight, or come to rest in weedy ditches, hedges or ravines where they feed on thistle and other ripening weed seeds.

Check Each Day

The yellow warbler, sometimes mistaken for the goldfinch, (also the other way around) has been gone for several weeks and others of the warbler family are beginning to pass through on their way south. As a rule they come in flocks of several species, usually the same species you find with them on their spring journey. These early migrating warblers are seldom noticed on their way south.

There are several reasons for this. In many instances they have changed their bright-colored plumage for duller tones and they utter only their chirping call notes instead of their spring songs. The vegetation is still too thick for us to notice them among the trees, bushes or on the ground and we still have too many resident birds to discover the tiny migrating warblers.

The best way to discover which of the flocking species are migrating birds and which are not is to watch them day after day, keeping a record of those you see each day. Soon some of the flocks will become fewer and smaller and then be absent entirely while others will remain with us until late fall. This method of bird watching will enable you to have departure dates for birds as well as arrival dates, which most bird students keep. To the compilers of the book of Wisconsin birds, late dates are as important as first dates.

$3,000 Loss As Barn Burns On Parfitt Farm

Three Calves, Fifty Chickens, Machinery Destroyed by Flames

Clintonville — A loss of more than $3,000 resulted from a fire Saturday evening at the Bert Parfitt farm located six miles east of Clintonville on Highway 156 in the town of Matteson. The farm is owned by John Stewart of Sugar Bush, father-in-law of Mr. Parfitt. The barn was in flames when the fire was noticed at 10:30 by a neighbor, Arthur Arneson, who notified the Clintonville rural fire department. The Parfitt family was not at home at the time of the fire, having gone to Sugar Bush earlier in the evening, and then to New London to visit Mr. Parfitt's parents.

The Clintonville firemen could do nothing to save the structure or its contents, but stayed at the farm until 5:30 Sunday morning to make sure that none of the other farm buildings would catch fire in case the wind should change direction. The barn, which was of frame construction 38 by 50 feet, also housed the chicken coop and machine shed. The season's crops consisting of ten loads of unthreshed grain and 15 tons of hay were destroyed, as were also 50 chickens, three heifer calves, a corn binder, a grain binder, feed cutter, corn planter, drag and other farm machinery. The cows and horses were out in the pasture at the time of the fire, the origin of which is unknown. The loss is partially covered by insurance.

The circulation department of the Appleton Post-Crescent is represented in Clintonville by James Bohr, 46 Main street. Orders for subscriptions may be left with him. Subscribers missed by carriers should call Mr. Bohr, telephone 5871, before 7 p. m.

BOOKED AT RIO THEATER—In the title role of the picture opening Friday at the Rio theater, "The Sea Hawk," Errol Flynn, as a Robin Hood of the seas, portrays a galle slave who became the daring chieftain of the most dangerous band of men ever to fight under the flag of the "skull and cross-bones." Brenda Marshall heads the big supporting cast.

Boy Seriously Hurt in Blast

Explosion of Dynamite Cap Results in Injury To Eye at Clintonville

Clintonville—The explosion of dynamite caps in a bonfire caused serious injuries to the eye of Eugene, 7-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Beckman, 157 Waupaca street. The youngster was with his father, who was burning rubbish near their home early Friday evening. Mr. Beckman does not know how the dynamite caps happened to be thrown into the rubbish.

The explosion of the caps shot burning fragments of debris into the air striking the child's face, neck and hands. Mr. Beckman also received some minor burns. The most serious injury is to the boy's eye which was burned near the pupil. The vision is seriously impaired, but because of the inflammation still present in the eye, it has not been definitely determined whether permanent injuries will result. The boy is under the care of a local physician.

A son, Thomas Jay, was born Aug. 14 to Dr. and Mrs. Lewis A. Walter of East Orange New Jersey. Mrs. Walter was the former Miss Carol Velle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Velle, Clintonville. A graduate of Theda Clark school of nursing at Neenah, the former Miss Velle was employed as a registered nurse in a New York hospital for several years prior to her marriage.

Mrs. Robert Winkler, Jr. and Mrs. Clement Bohr entertained at a desert-bridge in honor of Mrs. Everett Clauson at the former's home on Eleventh street Friday afternoon. Six tables of contract bridge were played with prizes awarded to Mrs. Keith Beggs, Mrs. James Kuester, Mrs. Carl Rulsen and Mrs. Ray Donaldson.

Pegler Terms Conscription Of Wealth Fatal to Freedom

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—As I expected, a lot of people have been shocked by the apparent brutality of my proposition that while it is not undemocratic to conscript human beings for military service, nevertheless, democracy must die if and when mere bloodless wealth is conscripted, too. The objections seem to me to be emotional protests against an exasperating reality which is no invention of mine, for no man can get around, over or under the fact that in every country where wealth has been conscripted or confiscated the people have lost everything which Americans would defend. Or have I overlooked some country in which the effect did not follow the cause? Don't cite Britain, please, because the results there have not jelled as yet.

A man who has no material wealth of his own worth counting is almost certain to resent the suggestion that in case of war his life may be placed at risk by command of the government while the wealth of Henry Ford, for example, must be respected and protected. That certainly is a mean state of affairs, but, still, if the nation should take Ford's property, then it should take the property of every other man.

The government thus would become the only employer in the country and the boss and ruler of all labor. All our eminent unionists, except the communists and nazi-fascists, agree that total government control of labor, enforced by law, is fatal to freedom, amounting, as it does, to conscription of labor.

Our unionists even resent the suggestion that the government should impose some supervision of the elections and finances of unions for the protection of the rank and file members, and I will be fair enough to grant that they are not altogether concerned with the protection of the graft and power which flow from these funds to union leaders.

I think they are also honestly apprehensive that a small degree of government authority would expand into total control by a government department. And a government department as tough, arbitrary and cruel as these labor organizations have been in many of their dealings with workers, and with the power of the federal law behind its decisions, would murder liberty.

If, by conscription, you have in mind the idea that the government should "take over" certain essential works for the duration of the emergency, we might be able to work out a rough understanding. In that case the owners and the unionists both would have to play ball with the government. The owners would have to be content with a little return on their money and the unions would have to rock along and compromise some points of dispute and

Government bonds and postal savings are wealth, the conscription or confiscation of which would amount to a flat repudiation of the government's debts, and that fact, embarrassing as it is to those who think liberty can live where wealth is conscripted, will not be vanquished by mere indignation or scorn.

Birthday Party Held At Clintonville Home

Clintonville — Guests Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Parfitt on E. Madison street were Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Parfitt and daughter Lois of Ogdensburg, Minn., and Mrs. A. Larson of Shawano, Wis., and Mrs. Franklin Braun and children of Sugar Bush. The family gathering was in celebration of Mrs. Parfitt's birthday anniversary, which occurs Aug. 30.

Merrill Meinhardt, who recently enlisted in the United States navy and is now stationed at the Great Lakes Naval Training Station, is spending a two weeks' furlough with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Meinhardt, in this city.

how many of these fortunes still exist intact, either in the hands of original possessors or in the hands of their heirs. I suspect that many of them were only table-cloth or, at best, temporary millionaires, whose money soon got away, as quick as easy money usually does. And a few thousand fresh war millionaires, offensive as their avarice and manners might be, whose fortunes almost inevitably would wash back into circulation, would do much less harm and vanish sooner than the results of conscription or confiscation of wealth.

This is not a proposition of lives versus dollars. Lives are not opposed to dollars or vice versa.

Pleads Not Guilty Of Assault, Battery

Earl Timm, 22, 1058 E. Wisconsin avenue, pleaded not guilty of assault and battery when he was arraigned before Judge Thomas H. Ryan in municipal court this morning. Trial was set for 2 o'clock Friday afternoon and Timm was released when he furnished a bond of $100.

Timm, a cab driver, was arrested about 6 o'clock Saturday night on the complaint of Lawrence G. Salter, 715 W. Commercial street, driver for another taxi company, after an altercation near the Chicago and North Western railroad depot on Appleton street.

Beauty and You

RELIEVES EAR ITCH—Professional swabs are efficacious in relieving an ear itch or for deep ear cleansing. The swab should be saturated with warm water.

Not much attention is required ordinarily in the care of ears. We wash them and let them go at that. But how we wash them is of prime importance if we wish not to injure the delicate construction which enables us to hear.

One mistake frequently made is the attempt to clean the ears with hairpins and other hard objects in order to relieve them of a supposed accumulation of wax. It should be sufficient to wash the ears scientifically with a twisted wad of absorbent cotton.

The presence of a certain amount of wax is natural and has a protective purpose. If an abnormal deposit is in one ear, or both of them, it should be removed by a physician through a washing process. Even a physician should not insert a hard object into the ear to remove a wax deposit. Syringing takes longer, but it is the proper method of cleaning the ear.

Don't ever put a finger nail into your ear when it itches! That is a dangerous habit, for a scratch by a nail may give rise to serious inflammation and possibly tragic consequences. To relieve the itch, swab the ear out gently with soap and water. You may buy prepared swabs at any drug store, or you may twist a wad of sanitary absorbent cotton such as a mother does when cleaning a young baby's tender nose. The outer formation of the ear may be washed with a face cloth and soap.

Make-Up for the Ear

One should also take the precaution to keep powder out of the ears. If you feel you must tone down the color of your ears with powder apply it with your finger tips to the outer part only. Rouge, which some women like to use on the lobes, should be applied in like manner.

Ears which project unbekomingly may be pasted back with a bit of liquid adhesive or liquid court plaster. Place it behind the upper part of the ear and then hold the ear back with a band until it sticks. Simply be careful not to get the adhesive near the hair line for when you rub it off at night, it is likely to take any hair it touches off with it. Screen actresses and actors paste back their ears daily, so the trick is not harmful. The sticky substance rolls off like gum at the end of the day.

Button earrings, especially pearls, often frequently add to a woman's facial beauty. Women over forty should always show the lobes of their ears by dressing their hair back from their faces. Thus a button earring on the lobe can bring flattering color close to the face.

Ear Blemishes
If a skin rash or other minor blemish appears on the ear one should treat it with a diluted germicide after a thorough washing and rinsing. If a blemish persists one should seek the advice of a doctor before local infection spreads into the ear or to the scalp and causes a serious problem.

A new leaflet "Care of the Ears" is available if you write for it care of this paper and enclose a self-addressed, stamped (3-cent) envelope with your request.

My Neighbor Says—

If you want one flower that is easy to grow and will give you a lot of color, try petunias next year. Make your selection of colors now, then order seed so you will have them by February. Plant in seed boxes and they will be ready to transplant into your garden about Memorial Day.

Lacquering brass articles will give them that well-kept look. To clean them either wipe off with soft cloth or gently wash them in warm water and soap suds and be careful not to remove the lacquer. The articles can easily be relacquered, however.

Diced cooked lamb mixed with diced celery and minced parsley makes a tasty filling for mint gelatin salad. Serve on lettuce and top with boiled dressing or mayonnaise.

If you do much sewing at night, a bridge lamp with arm extended right over your sewing will give you the best light. A shade of off-white or pale amber gives the most restful light.

"The bidding:

North East South West
1 club Pass 2 diamonds Pass
2 spades Pass 7 diamonds Pass
Pass Pass

"West opened the three of spades and the moment the dummy was laid down South made some bitter remarks about his partner's bidding. (Obviously, the grand slam contract would require a successful finesse in hearts or clubs and, moreover, declarer would have to guess which to take.) The gist of South's remarks was that North had had no right to bid two spades over two diamonds, that with his comparatively meager top strength, and with a six card club suit as against a four card spade suit, it would have been far more logical, and safer, merely to rebid the clubs. South claimed that the implications of North's two spade 'reverse' bid had justified him in going to the grand slam.

It seemed to me that South's points were well taken. However, as things turned out, this was all merely academic (and highly ironic) since South proceeded to fulfill the contract.

"Dummy's three top spades were cashed immediately. Declarer, after considerable thought, discarded three hearts. The club finesse then was taken. When it succeeded, declarer entered his own hand with the heart ace, drew trumps, and claimed the balance.

"The opponents, who had taken South's lecture of North to mean that the contract was hopeless, were none too pleased about the whole thing. Their main cause of disappointment was that South had taken the winning club finesse instead of the losing heart finesse. 'On what had he based his choice,' they wanted to know.

"South's answer seemed to me to be logical. He pointed out that with clubs, diamonds, and spades bid by himself and partner, West very likely would have opened the unbid suit, hearts, if he had not had reason to fear that lead, and his only good reason could be the possession of the heart king. This made the club finesse the better bet, by far.

"Don't you agree that South's reasoning was sound, altho admittedly it was a hair splitting decision?

"R. B., Chicago."

The very fact that South was faced with a hair splitting decision made his choice all the more commendable. I also agree with his criticism of North's bidding.

THANKING OTHERS

It is always better to be a little too polite than not to be courteous at all, but sometimes notes of thanks are really unnecessary as in the following situation: "I have just come home from visiting a schoolmate. Some of her friends gave parties for me when I was there and I am writing to these girls to thank them again for all their kindnesses. But what about the men friends who took me to dances and to some of the parties? My friend arranged all this, of course, and I hadn't known any of these men before. Shall I write them notes, too, or might this seem overdone?"

In answer to this: Writing notes to these men would be unnecessary. If you thanked them when you left, that is quite enough. Or perhaps, if you happened to see one of them more often than the others, you might send him a greeting card sometime when you

Most Young Doctors Must Forego an Early Marriage

BY DOROTHY DIX

There was a time when men painted and powdered their faces; adorned themselves in gay brocades, velvets, laces; decked themselves out in embroideries and jewels and wore their hair in ravishing curls. But somehow, through chicanery and cunning, women stole all of their fine feathers from them and made these aids to beauty their perquisites. And for a long time the male of the species has been reduced to clothing himself in drab tubular garments and being as homely as God made him. Now, however, it seems that men have rebelled at letting women monopolize the beauty shops and have set about recovering some of their lost gewgaws. What the modern well-dressed man is wearing is showing plenty of color in it, and there is an ever-increasing evidence of pants with lots of pleats and tucks in them, while we are all witness to the fact that all the glamor boys have developed waves in their hair that are too perfect ever to have been done by nature. One of these masculine seekers after pulchritude writes me as follows:

Dorothy Dix

"Men," he says, "who are well-groomed today not only use face creams, powder, perfume and have their hair waved and their nails manicured, but, like myself, wear girdles, so that in the future there will be no more bay-windowed men. The fat man will be merely a stylish stout, such as well-corseted fat women are."

"It so happens that I am employed in a ladies' specialty store where I have to meet an elite public daily and I would not be able to hold my situation if I was not at all times able to present an attractive appearance. Hence I have facials in a beauty shop every two weeks as well as a manicure. I use make-up creams, powder and lip rouge, perfume, hair tonic and lipstick, and I see nothing unmasculine in doing these things, any more than the men of the past did in wearing silks and ruffles.

I believe it is feminine jealousy that has made women keep men in their hideous old dark clothes and from trying to improve their appearance by the use of cosmetics, pretending that they admired the rugged he-man type. They didn't want men to steal their thunder."

I think the assumption that men are going in for personal adornment is glad tidings of great joy, for all who make themselves easy on the eyes confer a public benefit on a world that is not as well populated with Myrna Loy and Robert Taylors as we could wish.

After all, there is no reason why women should go through all the torture of trying to keep slim and willowy, nor why they should suffer the agonies of being scalped to have their straight hair turned curly, nor why they should spend half their time putting on and repairing their complexion in order to look good to men, while men don't care a hang about how they look to women. Now let the men go to it and do their stuff so they may please the feminine eye.

Be Established Before You Marry
Dear Dorothy Dix—I am a young man of 25. Since childhood it has been my ambition to be a doctor, and I have just enrolled in a medical school. It will take me four years to finish the course and I shall have no income during that time. I have been going steadily with a girl and the question is—shall I marry her now, with the understanding that she shall work or stay with her parents, with me seeing her only occasionally, for the next four years; or should we wait until I complete my training before marrying? She is opposed to waiting. Would the plan I have outlined work successfully? M.D.

You are optimistic if you think that the minute you get your degree as a doctor you will be in a position to marry. It will be a much longer wait than four years, because you will have to serve your internship. If you are going to be a first-class doctor you will have to take extra courses. When you hang out your shingle, unless you are a son of Lady Luck, there will be a long, weary, dreary time before you will make enough money to support a wife.

A young doctor seriously handicaps himself by marrying unless he marries a girl with money and position and family influence. For there are many doors open to an unmarried man that are shut to a married man.

come across one that is an amusing (rather than sentimental) reminder of almost any occurrence during your visit—but do not send it now.

Guest's Procedure at Reception
Dear Mrs. Post: When going to a very large afternoon reception as a stranger to the hosts, (1) How does one present oneself? Every one who will be with me is also a stranger. (2) How long must we stay at this reception, and when we leave, do we go out quietly, and say nothing? Or should we say "Good-bye and thank you" at least to some one?

Answer: (1) You tell the hostess your name with title, if you are married or an elderly spinster, and without title if you are a young girl or a man. (2) You stay as long or as short a time as you please. If you leave almost immediately, it is better to go without saying good-bye, and thereby attracting the attention of your host to your going. But if you stay until the queue of arriving guests is no longer demanding the attention of your hostess, you say "Good-bye and thank you."

Putting a Glass Sauter on the Tablecloth
Dear Mrs. Post: The other day you said that a glass sauter under a stemmed glass was too small to put down on the tablecloth at any time. Haven't you seen the small saucers that are often used under the finger bowls and put down upon the table?

Answer: One might see many things done, but this does not always make them right. Correctly, the small saucer under a finger bowl is put upon a plate. This is not merely a long established convention of table-setting, but a matter of proportion. A five or six-inch plate is too small for a place plate—much. Every saucer, whether of glass or china, must either have a coffee or tea or chocolate cup on it or a plate under it. A finger bowl is not considered a cup.

married one, and women will do much more to push the fortunes of an eligible bachelor than they will one who has to drag a wife along with him wherever he goes.

The plan that you suggest for solving your problems is untenable. If you marry and leave your wife behind you and only see her at rare intervals, she will be unhappy and continually telling you how lonely she is, and you will almost inevitably drift apart. Besides, your mind will be upset by the unnatural arrangement so that you will not be able to concentrate on your studies as you should.

As long as the girl proposes to work after marriage anyway, why not see if she cannot get a job in the city in which you are going to study? Then you could marry and she could make a home for you. But if this can't be done, put off the wedding until you can see your way clear.

Women Forgive More Easily Than Men

Dear Mrs. Dix—Like many other foolish men, I left my wife for another woman and realized my mistake before I had even unpacked my grips. I have never ceased regretting it. For many months my wife tried to effect a reconciliation, but I was too proud to go back home. Then when I realized that I was in danger of losing her forever because another man was courting her assiduously, I was eager to return to her, but she wouldn't have me. Now my wife tells me that the man was kind and sympathetic and caught her on the rebound, but that she never really loved him. She still wants us to come together again, but I simply won't have it now, though I will never be happy without her. Why is it that a woman can so easily forgive and forget, while a man climbs up on his dignity and will not condescend to forgive anything? WALTER.

Answer: If women forgive oftener than men do, it is because they have more sense about love, and because they do not make such demands upon men as men make upon women.

But the theory that women are a mushy, slushy mess of forgiveness is one in which men put too much faith. A woman resents ill-treatment from her husband just as much as a man does ill-treatment from his wife, and she ceases to love him when he becomes unlovable just as quickly as a man does when his wife no longer appeals to him.

But I can't figure out your position in your domestic mix-up. You are acting like a spoiled child. You want your wife and you don't want her. When you can't get her you long for her, and when she offers herself to you you reject her. And the mystery of the whole matter is why she wants to bother with a man so unstable as you are.

Shyness Is a Good Sign Of Breeding, Patri Says

BY ANGELO PATRI

Well brought up children are somewhat shy in the presence of strangers. They wait until they are spoken to before entering the conversation and are silent again after saying what they should. They wait before venturing an opinion. They are not the first to move, nor the last, in any situation. There is nothing to dread in that sort of shyness. It is a wholesome humility expressed in behavior. It is in pleasant contrast to the loud forwardness of the ill-bred child.

Any new situation makes a child cautious. In the presence of strangers he listens and watches to learn what kind of people they are. He sits in the background waiting. When he is assured of kindly reception and understanding, and his intelligence soon interprets the situation for him, he comes forward by degrees.

Don't Force Child

It is a mistake to try to force such a child into the center of things. When that happens the child moves on another's power, under another's will. He has not accepted the experience as his own, indeed he could not. He has gained nothing to help him in the next experience of the kind and will be in a worse plight than before because dread has been added to the original caution. Let him wait quietly and listen, and he will gain his experience.

Forcing a retiring child to greet guests he has not seen before does no good. Entering a room filled with grown-up people, strangers among them, is an ordeal for a child and quite unnecessary. If he must meet the people let him be seated in the room before the guests come. If that is not possible, let some grown person whom the child knows and trusts, escort him into the room and see him out again.

This last is important to children. They ought not to be asked nor permitted to stay any length of time in the room with guests of their parents. The talk is beyond them; so are the conventions the situation demands. Let them make their bows, answer the questions, and go back to their own world.

Correct It in Adolescents.

Mothers and fathers are often embarrassed by the behavior of little children in the presence of strangers. They stand on the furniture, or they show off badly in other ways. This is because they

Case Records of a Psychologist

By Dr. George W. Crane

Psychologist, Northwestern University

If you think a salesman's job is easy, you ought to try it for a few weeks. Most people who do, are usually quite willing to return to their routine tasks, even at a lower salary, for sales work makes us shed "cold" sweat. But the sales job usually pays pretty well and has other sterling advantages as demonstrated by Clyde's case.

CASE R-155: Clyde D., aged 31, is a gasoline station worker.

"He is such a good salesman that our boss is afraid of him," one of his younger co-workers informed me.

"About half of our trade is due to Clyde. People like him. But they don't care so much for the boss, who doesn't know how to kid them along and talk."

"The boss would really like to see Clyde leave us, but he is afraid he might get a job across the street at a rival gas station, so he doesn't dare let him go."

"As a matter of fact, the man across the street offered Clyde $25 per week if he'd work for him, which is $2.50 more than he gets now, but Clyde said he thought he ought to stay where he is."

"Dr. Crane, what do you think of sales work for a young fellow?"

DIAGNOSIS:
Clyde's own case illustrates some of the advantages in sales work. You saw how Clyde not only drew a fair salary as a worker, but how he had something else of even greater worth.

Clyde has a personal clientele which is primarily his own, and only secondarily his employer's. If Clyde leaves his present job and wants to get another, the gas station across the street will gladly give him work.

Or, if he wants a wage increase, his present boss will be inclined to treat him fairly, for Clyde has leverage with which to pry loose more money on his present job.

Advantages Of Sales Work
If Clyde had an inside job, such as bookkeeper, he would not have a clientele to use as leverage. If he were then fired, he could not so easily procure a new position, for he would not have the purchasing power in the form of several hundred cash customers who would follow him across the street.

Sales work is extremely difficult, for it demands that a man be on his toes at all times. You can't dream or be absent-minded in dealing with your customers. Your attention must always be riveted on the prospect.

Many people erroneously think sales work is easy because they feel that reciting a few sales paragraphs is not as hard as carrying a hod or pitching hay.

But there is far more strain and nervous tension in mustering up the courage to utter those sales talks, than in carrying the hod or working on the farm. I've done both, so I know from firsthand experience.

Sales Work Is Mental
Sales work is largely a mental operation. But most people shun mental work, which is why they will gladly do manual jobs at lower wages, instead of going through the agony and stage fright of selling.

I have literally seen men quit their factory and office positions to try saleswork, and then eagerly go back to the former. They shed nervous "cold" sweat while selling, instead of the complacent hot perspiration of a routine manual job.

Don't belittle the salesmen of this country, therefore, or think they have a snap job, just because they wear white collars instead of overalls.

The salesmen, says Dr. Glenn Frank, are the sparkplugs of civilization. They are chiefly responsible for putting the radios and automobiles, vacuum cleaners and life insurance into our homes. They are the pillars of the high standard of living in the United States.

Don't begrudge the salesman his higher salary. If you don't think he earns it, try sales work yourself. You'll probably be glad to go back to your present line of work, since most of us don't like to shed "cold" sweat.

Casual Slaughters

By Virginia Hanson

YESTERDAY: Adam tells Kay that the police thought there might be a connection between the incidents on the post and a certain kidnapping case. But the Randleys' fingerprints are not those of Immerman, the missing waiter, and the money found in the car is not the ransom money.

Chapter 14
Ivan Terrible

"Mess call!" Adam exclaimed and, undoubting his long legs, stood in front of me drawing in the belt of his trousers until the girl who used to boast of a waist that a man could encircle with two hands would have broken her corset strings in envy.

"See that?" he asked reproachfully. "And you coming to breakfast every morning begging the very food out of my mouth!"

"You're just a squab with a misplaced neck," I scoffed.

I always feel that I have accomplished something when I make Adam laugh out loud, as he did at this obvious slander. Actually, he has the longest, finest bones of anyone I ever saw; dressed, he looks thin. In trunks, it is impossible to detect either an awkward angle or a gram of surplus flesh. He is like

Mercury in beautiful extended flight.

He must have seen something of what I was thinking in my eyes, for he suddenly flushed boyishly up to the roots of his corn silk hair and reached me a hand which he did not withdraw.

"Come and get it," he said.

Hand in hand, scuffing the sand with our bare feet, we walked back along the beach.

It was getting cooler as the gray veil of evening floated in from the lake. I put on my terry-lined beach robe and pulled Adam into pulling a sweat shirt over my head, the rest of the crowd around a little portable stove on which hamburgers were sizzling fragrantly.

Gerald Beaufort left Julia's side, where he had been hovering in unrewarded patience since we reached the beach, and came to greet us.

"You like raw onions mit ham-burgers?"

"Definitely."

"Oh, Ger-ald!"

"Good! So do I. Perhaps we're soul mates!"

Adam looked after him bitterly. "I'm going to buy me some eye-lashes, too. Then maybe someday some girl will give me a dym-dy-cal look and say, 'Oh, A-a-dam!'"

Colton Pennant and Mimi had arrived during our jaunt up the beach.

I went over to say good evening to Mimi. Mimi was wearing one of those pajama outfits with the shirttail out and clogs with soles at least two inches thick. Sitting, she looked about sixteen. She answered me vaguely, but Sandra, on the sand between Jeff and Ivan the terrible, turning her soft violet eyes from one to the other, seated near them with a set smile on her face, kept me for a moment to ask, with flattering interest, how my work was progressing; and when I moved away to join Julia at the portable stove she got to her feet and followed me.

Frozen Smile
The chaplain was hovering about, perilously fumbling paper cups and plates. Sandra took him in tow, and Julia looked after her with grudging gratitude.

"First good-samaritan act she ever performed for me," she commented out of the corner of her mouth. "Pure accident. He's a man. Is she sore at Mimi? Can't imagine how she's keeping that pair of strange dogs from biting each other."

"I've been wondering myself," I confessed.

"Marvelous hand with the lads. Mimi!" commented her step-daughter, a little bitterly. "Here, Kay, turn these hamburgers."

"I'd like to take my car, if you don't mind, Julia," Mimi said, gathering up an armful of food containers while Adam, with the chaplain stepping on his heels in a frenzy of helpfulness, strode off with it, enclosing ten cents in coin. Address Angelo Patri, P. O. Box 75, Station O, New York, N. Y.

Girdle-Apron

With the busiest season of the year looming ahead, the smart housewife will be wise to put in a good supply of aprons. Pattern 4493 by Anne Adams is a simple style that makes several gay "cover-ups!" There are two neckline versions; one a low V-shape; the other a higher, squared-off style. A pointed, bias-cut waist-girdle gives you that smart whittled look; the skirt is nicely full and you will take special pride in the back, with the straps held securely in place by a buttoned halter. Try a version with girdle, sash and pockets all in a bright contrast. This pattern is easy to use with the Sewing Instructor's help.

Pattern 4493 is available in sizes small (32-34), medium (36-38), and large (40-42). Small sizes takes 2½ yards 35 inch fabric and 1½ yards ruffling.

two empty thermos jugs to stow in the colonel's car.

"Why ask me?" said Julia ungraciously.

"Well, your father has promised to speak at that lodge meeting and I thought I'd like to take a drive." Arms laden, she straightened with an air of defiance her cheeks a little pink. "But I don't want to inconvenience you."

"No inconvenience," said Julia, convenience you."

Mimi smiled, but she looked puzzled. "Don't let us break up the party," she said. "There should be hours of this beautiful moonlight."

"Addles the brains," observed Felicia crisply, joining us. She had been talking to Colonel Pennant, who looked very sleek and good natured and as young as usual.

"Too much for this old gray head. If you don't mind, Mrs. Pennant, I'd like to be dropped at the club. I still have linen to count and tomorrow's menus. And then to bed."

Mimi said, "No trouble at all," but her smile froze a little.

They said goodby, the three of them, and the two cars started in single file down the narrow road.

The chaplain looked after them a little wistfully. I thought, and I too. Probably some moldy sense of wonder why he had not come, propriety, I decided; one should not shirk one's social duties.

Julia had brought a Hawaiian guitar which she had managed to conceal until the move was on her. She brought it out now and, leaning against Gerald Beaufort's shoulder, sang "Chloe" in lovely, husky voice that sent shivers up and down my spine. Adam stretched out, shaped the sand to his body with a little wriggle, and put his head in my lap.

I fingered his hair—I had always wanted to. It was soft, like a baby's, and his scalp was faintly pink, like a baby's too. Except for an inch-long scar on the crown of his head. A white line which the upstanding, close-cropped hair would normally hide. I wanted to ask him about it, but his eyes, in the bright moonlight, were closed; his face was closed, too—expressionless. He might have been asleep, or dead.

Ain't no chains can bind you. If you live, I'll find you . . .

Jeff turned his back on the little chaplain, who had intruded on his solitude, lay down on his side and appeared to slumber. The withdrawal of his morose presence was a relief. He had been looking from Sandra and Ivan to Julia and Gerald, with what appeared to be ill-

GYPSIES

There is a custom of calling an ordinary person a "gypsy" if he likes to travel so much that he can hardly stay in one place long enough to hang his hat.

The true gypsies are much like that. All through their known history, they have been wanderers—or at least the majority of them have kept moving from place to place. In a few countries, however, there are some thousands who have settled down.

The name "gypsy" also is spelled "gipsy." It grew out of an early be-

Picture of gypsies made by French artist 300 years ago. It appears that the homeland of these people was Egypt.

Careful study seems to have proved that the first gypsy home was India, not Egypt. Some of them are to be found in Egypt today, but their ancestors are believed to have moved there in fairly modern times. In the Egyptian language a man is a "rom" and a woman is a "romni." Both those words go back to the language of an old caste in India. It was a low caste, and the gypsies probably started wandering because they did not enjoy life in their native land.

Large bands of gypsies existed in western Asia hundreds of years before they entered Europe. It appears that they moved to Greece before the year 1400. Later they spread through the Balkan lands and into Hungary.

Some went from Hungary into Bohemia. King Sigismund gave them "letters of protection" when they moved from Bohemia into France. Perhaps he was glad to do that because he thought his own country would be freed of many or most of them.

Gypsies also entered Germany, Denmark and Sweden. Sooner or later each of those countries made laws against them.

About a century passed in Denmark before the gypsies were ordered out. Then King Christian III made a royal decree telling them to leave the country.

About 100 years later—in 1662—the same sort of order was issued in Sweden. The gypsies were told that they would suffer death if they came back again.

Composer Will Talk to Clubs

Frederick Bowers on Program for Rotary, Lions Ladies' Night

Kaukauna—Frederick V. Bowers, celebrated composer and pianist, will be the guest of honor at a joint meeting of the Kaukauna Rotary and Lions clubs at the Kaukauna hotel Wednesday evening. The affair will be a ladies' night for both organizations.

The program is being sponsored by the Rotary club.

Bowers is probably best known for two of his more famous songs, "Always" and "Because I Love You." He was one of the first of the group of composers whose songs sold up to two to three million copies.

He was for a long time in vaudeville where he made friends with the late Will Rogers and the late Marie Dressler, when both of those stars were beginning.

Bowers is at present on a good will tour sponsored by the American Society of Composers, Authors, and Publishers. In his talks he describes the famous men and women of the stage and tells their stories in song.

Voters Have Two Weeks to Register

Kaukauna — Only two weeks remain to register for the primary election, City Clerk Lester J. Brenzel warned today.

The last date of registration will be Saturday, September 7, with the primary being held on Tuesday, September 17. Registrations should be made at the office of the city clerk.

Those persons who must register are the new citizens who will vote for the first time, those who have recently moved to town, those who have moved from one ward to another, and those who have changed their address at all, even though living in the same ward.

In the past, the city clerk said, confusion has arisen because people who moved from one location to another in the same ward failed to register.
